BRITISH MINING CRISIS PRACTICALLY SETTLED

Dominion Premier Told To End Trade Anxiety With Election Decision

Conservative Leader Challenges Mr. King to Come Out Into Open With Polling Plans—Demand Is Widespread for Early Test, Declares Mr. Meighen, Party Chieftain, in Manitoba Speech

Tory Chief Confident of Result When Appeal Is Made to Country

STONEWALL, Man., July 30.—Speaking here this afternoon, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, former Premier, and leader of the Opposition in the Federal House, challenged Premier Mackenzie King to relieve business anxiety in the Dominion by stating immediately whether an election would be held in the Fall or whether he would face another session of Parliament.

There was a widespread demand for an election in the near future, he declared, and he expressed himself as optimistic about the result in the event of Mr. King screwing up courage to appeal to the country now.

Higher Tariff Urged

Mr. Meighen dealt at considerable length with the tariff question, and maintained that a protectionist policy was the only one that would put Canada on its feet economically. So far from the tariff being reduced, he claimed it should have been raised and the example of the United States followed.

With regard to the Hudson Bay Railway, the former Premier asserted amid applause that it was a Conservative Government that had built it, and it would be a Conservative Government that would complete it.

Explaining his stand in this connection, Mr. Meighen said he did not mean that a Conservative Government would go to the expense of building an elaborate terminal system right away, but indicated that the work would take the form of enabling the route to be tested in order to ascertain whether further expenditure would be worth while or not.

Warns of Annexation

STONEWALL, Man., July 30.—"Annexation by emigration is just as effective as by any other method," declared Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, before an audience here today, warning against what he termed the policy of the Government which forces Canadians to cross the line into the United States for employment, that in his judgment, could be secured at home under an adequate tariff system.

Mr. Meighen supported his observation by calling on those who do not think people are leaving Canada to go into the U. S. immigration offices at Winnipeg, Regina, or elsewhere, and verify his view.

It was at an old fashioned basket picnic that Mr. Meighen ushered in his Western campaign, attended by several thousand rural residents and many Winnipeg citizens who had come by automobile.

N. T. Boyd, president of the Manitoba Conservative Association, presented the guest of honor with an illuminated address in the name of Rockwood Conservative Association expressing confidence in his policies and pledging loyal support.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, July 30.—Mob demonstrations were made against American missionaries at tirenada Monday night and a native woman who was in the missionary church was seriously injured. Police saved a church from damage and later arrested eleven members of the crowd that caused the trouble.

Tremors Damage 1,000 Buildings In Italian City

LONDON, July 30.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Rome says that earthquake shocks at Cerignola, in the province of Foggia, between Tuesday night and Wednesday afternoon, damaged more than 1,000 buildings, including the City Hall.

The populace was thrown into panic owing to the frequency of the shocks.

May Die of Injuries

NEW WESTMINSTER, July 30.—Leaping through one of the windows of the balcony of St. Mary's Hospital today, Mrs. Agnes Wegern, a patient of the institution, dropped a distance of thirty feet on the flower beds and sustained a broken back and other serious injuries as a result of which it is doubtful if she will recover.

Lieutenant-Governor Makes $1,000 Gift To Kelowna Hospital

KELOWNA, B.C., July 30.—At a luncheon tendered the delegates to the Western Canada irrigation convention, Mayor Sutherland made the announcement that His Honor Lieutenant-Governor W. C. Nichol had made a donation of $1,000 to the Kelowna hospital, to be used in securing additional X-ray equipment. His Honor had also presented two silver cups to the Kelowna Aquatic Club for competition at the annual regatta.

Fighting Monks Of Tibet Start Civil Conflict

War Breaks Out Between Progressive Party and Priests of Remote Asiatic Country, Says Report

LONDON, July 30.—A dispatch to The Daily Telegraph from Calcutta reports that civil war has broken out in Tibet in consequence of the bitter feud between the military and Progressive parties and the Conservative or priests party which includes virtually the entire lamaist hierarchy.

The correspondent describes the struggle as one between "modernism and lamaist reaction, headed by the celebrated fighting monks centered at the monastery stronghold at Sera and Dropung, who are fanatically resentful of western innovations which threaten their power."

The dispatch adds that there is a rumor current that ten thousand troops under a Chinese general are marching toward Tibet by way of Kham.

Fist Fights Break Reichstag Debates

German Legislators Come to Blows During Discussion of Church Taxes

BERLIN, July 30.—The Reichstag during the last few days has been the scene of heated encounters on the question of church taxes. Violent clashes between Communists and members of the Centrist party, in which many blows were exchanged by the members, necessitated repeated suspension of the meetings.

Members are rapidly succumbing to the strain of heated debating and the oppressive atmosphere of the Chamber. Eight or nine fainting spells occurred daily, and one deputy, who is a physician, is kept busy rendering first aid.

Slight Earth Shocks Felt in Southern U.S.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 30.—Earth tremors of low intensity were felt early today in Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico. They did no damage.

Ashland, Liberal and Medicine Lodge, Kansas, reports were of slight vibration, lasting from fifteen seconds to three minutes, that rattled windows and dishes.

Leavenworth reported two tremors, the first slight and the second more intense. Oklahoma City felt a barely perceptible shock. At Guyamon, Okla., plaster was shaken from ceilings.

His £4,000 Weekly Dole Hotly Rapped by Labor

DUKE OF NORTHUMBERLAND

who has opposed the dole, received a severe castigation from Ben Tillett, ex-M.P., secretary to the political and international department of the Transport and General Workers' Union, at the convention of that organization. "The Duke's dole is £4,000 weekly," Mr. Tillett declared, "in addition to royalties of 9 1-2 pence to the shilling for every ton of coal which is sold at from 14 shillings to 15 shillings a ton at the pithead, and yet is retailed at from 45 to 85 shillings a ton."

Forty Members Plan Visit to Canada Shortly

British House of Commons Party Will Visit Washington and Ottawa for Conferences This Fall

Many Well-Known Names

Though nothing is known yet about the plans of the British Interparliamentary Union party, which will leave England on September 19 for conferences in Washington and Ottawa, it is assumed that a number of them will come through to the Pacific Coast.

The personnel of the party contains a number of names of men and women well known to newspaper readers, perhaps the most notable being Sir Robert Horne and Lady Astor. In addition to the large number of members in a powerful Conservative party who have reached the House through the usual channels of the public schools and universities, there are a number of Labor men who served in humble occupations before they entered political life.

Communist Parsee

One of the most remarkable men is Mr. Saklatvala, the Communistic member for North Battersea, a Bombay Parsee who failed to turn the British Labor Party into the Communist movement, and since that time has been a member of the radical wing of that party. A fighter in another form of political endeavor is Mr. F. W. Pethick-Lawrence, who is well known

Soviet Budget Leaps Above Czarist Level

Figures for Coming Year Exceed Pre-War Mark by Several Million Dollars

MOSCOW, July 30.—For the first time since the revolution, Russia's budget will exceed the pre-war budget by several million dollars. According to the figures of the coming year's budget now before the Council of Commissars, the general balance is estimated at $1,730,000,000, as against $1,300,000,000 last year and $1,700,000,000 in 1913.

The ordinary income is expected to be $1,659,000,000 and the extraordinary income $71,000,000, while the ordinary expenditures will amount to $1,505,000,000 and the extraordinary to $225,000,000.

Mr. Preston to Renew Attacks on Atlantic Shipping Conference

LONDON, July 30.—W. T. R. Preston, author of the report to the Canadian Government on the alleged North Atlantic shipping combine, sailed today for Canada on the Melita. Mr. Preston told The Canadian Press that in consequence of additional information he had received since coming to England with the body of Sir William Peterson, with regard to the operations of the North Atlantic conference, he would be "better able than ever to go out on the inevitable campaign on reaching home."

Mr. Preston said the hopes of the combine that Sir William Peterson's death has blotted out the prospects of a government controlled system of shipping will be sadly extinguished before the fight is through. He declared Canada will now have access to the British markets.

Duty Holds Bread Price

ROME, July 30.—Price of bread, macaroni and other cereal products has been increased about ten per cent here because of the recent reimposition of an import duty of five cents a bushel on wheat.

Troops Slay Eight China Rain Makers

Hitch in Weather Ceremony Precipitates Attack on Soldiers by Infuriated People in Chinese City

Official Is Laggard Kowtowing to Frog

Mob Attacks Officer Who Balks at Doing His Bit in Ancient Celebration at Own Residence

PEKING, July 30.—A shooting affray as a sequel to a rain-inducing ceremony is reported from Taichow, Chekiang, the victims numbering eight dead and several wounded.

Following an ancient custom, a living frog in a glass jar was brought to the head military official at his residence, his part in the ceremony being to kowtow before the frog and to offer prayers.

Alleging that the time and place were not appropriate, the official ordered the frog taken to a temple, promising to proceed there and do his bit. The crowd, however, refused to move, and when the official's bodyguard attempted to clear them out a riot ensued.

In the beginning of the affair the jar was broken and the frog was trampled to death.

When the infuriated people rushed the soldiers, the official gave orders to fire, and eight persons fell dead. A priest was one of those killed.

"Buy in Canada" Drive Started

MONTREAL, July 30.—Unequivocal support for a "Buy in Canada" movement that will be extended from coast to coast was voiced today at a representative meeting of bankers, brokers, bond dealers and transportation companies. Agriculturists and other producers and consumers will be approached to lend their aid.

Japan Cabinet Resigns When Parties Split

Ministry Falls When Supporting Groups Quarrel—Request for Resignations Precipitates Crisis

TOKIO, July 31.—The cabinet has resigned.

The resignations followed a serious split between the Kenseikai and Seiyukai parties, both supporting the government of Premier Kato, over tax adjustment proposals.

The Premier asked for the resignations of three Seiyukai members of the cabinet, but the Seiyukai party decided that his request should not be granted. This necessitated the resignation of the whole cabinet.

Two of the three Seiyukai members walked out of a meeting today at which Premier Kato demanded their resignations. The third member was absent from the meeting, an extraordinary session to consider tax reforms, because of illness. The Prince Regent, apprised of the crisis, postponed a trip to Nikko.

Demand for the resignation of the three cabinet members came from Premier Kato after differences resulting from a tax adjustment programme opposed by the Seiyukai party members and proposed by the Kenseikai party, to whose view the Premier inclined.

Dominion Finances Not Giving Ottawa Trouble, Finance Chief Declares

TORONTO, July 30.—An optimistic report on Canada's financial condition was made by Hon. James A. Robb, who is in Toronto today.

"The Dominion finances won't worry us very much. There are 5,000,000 pounds sterling maturing in August and there is the money to pay it."

He stated there would be sufficient to retire 20,000,000 of the 90,000,000 dollars loan that will mature in New York in September and that there would be plenty of money for the next payment due, of forty-five million dollars, in December.

"It is not a question of money, but how cheap we can get it," Hon. Mr. Robb declared.

Six Escape Death When Train Hits Motor Car

VANCOUVER, July 30.—Six persons had a miraculous escape from serious injury today when the automobile of which they were occupants was struck by a British Columbia Electric Railway interurban train at a level crossing near Branscomb Station, Lulu Island, according to the police. J. Allison, a Lulu Island resident and driver of the car, with his wife, children and two women friends, received slight cuts and bruises, although the automobile was carried along the tracks for a considerable distance and thrown into the ditch, a complete wreck.

French-British Debt Settlement Conference Fails

LONDON, July 31.—The Daily Telegraph says the preliminary negotiations for a settlement of the French war debt to Great Britain broke down this morning.

The new French offer, although better than that made last Spring, was deemed so inadequate by the British Treasury as not to warrant serious consideration from the standpoint of the British taxpayer. Accordingly, says The Telegraph, the French delegation is returning to Paris today to report to Finance Minister Caillaux and unless he is able to make a much more substantial offer, it is probable Great Britain will prefer to await the outcome of the Franco-American funding conversations before resuming the pourparlers.

Blackberry Wine Will Be Made in City Very Soon

New Vintage on Market in Two Years—1925 Loganberry Wine Output Shows Over 100% Increase

Market for All V.I. Logans

Blackberry wine, made from the fruit growing on Vancouver Island vines, will shortly be manufactured in Victoria by the Growers' Wine Company, and between two hundred and three hundred gallons of the wine will two years hence will be on the local market, and obtainable by the public.

This announcement was made to The Colonist last night by Mr. N. H. Lamont, manager, and Mr. F. W. B. George, secretary of the Growers' Wine Company. This concern at the present time manufactures the famous Vin Soliel, which is made from the logans grown on the southern end of the Island.

Conducts Experiments

Encouraged by its success in the production of loganberry wine, the Growers' Wine Company decided recently to experiment in the making of blackberry wine. The experiments have been satisfactory, and within a short time commencement of the manufacture of blackberry wine will take place.

This year's output of loganberry wine shows an increase over last year's production by over one hundred per cent. In 1923, the first year of the company's existence, the production totalled 7,500 gallons of wine. This figure jumped to 23,000 gallons in 1924, while so far this year 55,000 gallons have been made, and before the season is ended 60,000 gallons will have been manufactured.

Absorbs Three-Quarters of Crop

There is now a market for all Island loganberries under present production, and three-quarters of the annual crop is absorbed by the Growers' Wine Company. The company is able to absorb all the berries that are too ripe for shipment.

The Growers' Wine Company recently exported 1,000 gallons of wine to Shanghai, and the results of this shipment have proved satisfactory. This was the first time that any wine made in British Columbia had been exported to a foreign country.

Tax on Mail Orders Urged by Retailers

Convention Would Make Postal Purchasers Pay—Cheque Stamps Condemned

VANCOUVER, July 30.—Resolutions condemning the stamp tax on cheques and receipts, protesting against the extra charge made by some manufacturers and wholesalers for boxes and cartages, recommending a tax on mail order business, which would be distributed among municipalities concerned, and amending the constitution, were passed by the convention of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada at the afternoon session here today.

The question of the income tax was brought up by the Quebec delegation, who pleaded for the association to take a stand against the tax. It was, however, referred to the Dominion board, which will take action after a survey of the wishes of the provincial boards and individual members.

Alberta delegates proposed a resolution to request the Government to allow country dealers to buy and sell ungraded eggs, under the consideration that they would grade all eggs for resale.

The special committee which had been appointed to deal with this resolution recommended against it. After discussion, the matter was referred back to the committee and will be brought up again.

Endowment Fund Will Maintain War Graves

LONDON, July 30.—Answering a question in the House of Commons today, Right Hon. Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, Secretary of State for War, said that it was the intention of the British Government to establish an endowment fund of £5,000,000 sterling for the maintenance of war cemeteries. The Overseas Dominions would have a part in the establishment of this fund.

Britain Staves Off Big Strike With Promise of Probe and Financial Aid

Government Offers to Assist Industry Until Spring Pending Report of Inquiry to Be Made Into Whole Coal Trade—London Newspapers Hail Announcement as Sure to Settle Controversy

Miners and Operators Expected To Agree to Premier's Proposal

LONDON, July 31.—The Government's decision to institute an inquiry into the coal industry and give financial assistance pending the report of the inquiry commission is generally regarded this morning as ending the British mining crisis.

Neither the mine owners nor the miners have made definite statements since the official announcement, but there seems to be good reason for believing that the mine owners will agree to suspend their notices regarding decrease in wages and lengthening of hours and that the miners will accept the situation.

This viewpoint is endorsed by most of the morning newspapers today.

LONDON, July 30.—The conference between Premier Baldwin and other members of his Government and representatives of the miners and mine owners ended at midnight tonight, without a settlement of the mine controversy having been arranged, but also without a final rupture in the negotiations.

It is understood the conversations will be resumed tomorrow.

An official statement was immediately issued by the Ministry of Labor saying the Government was prepared to render assistance to the coal industry until Spring, by which time an authoritative inquiry into the economic difficulties of the industry, as proposed by Premier Baldwin, will have been completed.

Miners Approve Inquiry

The official statement says the miners during the conversations tonight told the Premier that they desired to co-operate in the inquiry. They intimated that they regarded it unfair to require a reduction in wages in view of the present cost of living, before an attempt was made at an inquiry to secure contribution toward meeting the difficult situation with which the industry was confronted.

The Premier then announced that assistance would be given the industry until Spring, by which time the inquiry would get to the bottom of the economic difficulties of industry and see how far the allegations made regarding room for improvement were well founded, with a view to putting the industry speedily into a healthier condition and affording a better level of wages.

Owners Asked to Wait

The statement adds the Premier asked the mine owners to suspend their notices of reduced wages and longer hours of work for a fortnight in order to give an opportunity for the necessary discussion of how temporary assistance could be afforded them.

It was not stated in the communication whether the mine owners gave any reply, but it is learned that they will again meet the Premier tomorrow morning.

Templars From Canadian Cities Will Meet Here

Sovereign Grand Priory of Canada Will Be in Session Next Week in Victoria, Following Encampment

Will Assemble Tomorrow

Many Canadian Knights Templars will arrive here today and tomorrow for the forty-second annual assembly of the Sovereign Grand Priory of the Knights Templars in Canada.

The gathering is timed from August 1 to 4, but in view of the numerous engagements at the great conclave in Seattle and the reception of members at the steamers, there will be no session until the grand council meets tomorrow evening at the Empress Hotel, the Supreme Grand Master being Most Eminent Knight E. A. Evans, of Quebec. The deputy Grand Master is Col. George B. McLeod, of Edmonton, Alta.

On Sunday afternoon there will be a parade of the knights to Christ Church Cathedral, to hear an address by one of their chivalric order, Bishop dePencier.

The business sessions will be on Monday and Tuesday mornings at the Masonic Temple, Monday afternoon being occupied in a drive to Butchart Gardens, and Tuesday afternoon in a drive on the Malahat. Entertainments are to occupy Monday evening and Tuesday evening is to be reserved for the banquet.

Western Gate Preceptory, of this city, has taken an exceptionally important part in the proceedings at Seattle, most spectacular of its appearances being the transfer of the traveling beauseant which it had in custody from February of this year, to Bethlehem Commandery at Seattle, in the form of a picturesqua ceremonial.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The greatest effort in the history of the local prohibition department to padlock resorts alleged to be violators of the dry laws and to bring to trial "men higher up" will be launched Monday, United States Attorney Buckner announced today. Plans for the arraignment of 1,000 "padlock" cases before Federal Judge Hand next week have been perfected.

Attorney Buckner defined the "bigger men" as those caught in possession of $50 or more cases of liquor.

Swiss Murder Held Inspired by Movies

Austrian Farm Hand Claimed to Have Killed Woman in Robbery Attempt

BASLE, Switzerland, July 30. — A moving picture he had seen the day before in Basle led Johanns Hammerschlegel, 16 years old, to shoot and kill Mrs. Mary Levitt Bowne, of Berkeley, Cal., in a suburb of this city yesterday. The police say the boy, an Austrian farm hand, made this confession today after his arrest.

He had no time to rob the woman of her handbag after he had fired the shot which caused her death.

The boy stole an army revolver from his employer and fired at Mrs. Bowen from a tree top ten feet away. The bullet entered her neck and then penetrated her breast.

Mortally wounded, Mrs. Bowen dragged herself 150 feet into the ruins of the old castle Dorache, where she bled to death. Physicians who examined the body say that her life might have been saved if she had received prompt attention.

Mrs. Bowen had come to Switzerland to study anthroposophy—the knowledge of the nature of man—in the first temple erected to that modern art.

Seaman Meets Death In Shipboard Mishap

ABBERDEEN, Wash., July 30.—Laurence Halvorsen, seaman of the steamer San Pedro, was killed here today when struck by a sling-load of lumber at the Donovan mill. The lumber, striking him on the head, buried him into the water. His body was not recovered. P. Hannus, another sailor, dived for a half-hour in a futile effort to find the body. Halvorsen's home was in San Pedro, Cal.

St. Andrew's Is Making Changes In Management

Alterations in Personnel of Officials Is Result of Congregational Adjustments Being Made

New Elders Are Named

Significant of the change which is quietly taking place among the United and Presbyterian churches in view of the alterations to conform with the coming into existence of the United Church of Canada, the congregational meeting at St. Andrew's Church made several selections to fill vacancies.

From the names it will be seen that in place of those unionists who have withdrawn from communion at St. Andrew's, and of non-unionists who have withdrawn from First Church, further representation has been secured.

New elders chosen were Messrs. D. D. Muir, John Simpson, F. L. McPherson, Walter Paterson, Robert Kerr, A. F. Angus, and Dr. Thomas Miller. Messrs. McGowan, Duncan and Petrie were elected to three positions in the Board of Management.

Rev. Dr. Clay, the minister, reported on the recent conference of the Presbyterian Church in Toronto, and the treasurer reported a satisfactory financial statement. The superintendent of the Sunday School invited parents to attend the annual picnic on Labor Day.

Later a social gathering was held, and refreshments were served by the Ladies' Guild.

It is believed that as a result of the adjustment St. Andrew's will be numerically somewhat stronger than before the coming of church union.

Murdered at Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont., July 30.—James S. Devey, 23 years of age, Irish-American, and for some time employed at the St. Clair Country Club, was murdered, police believe, some time this morning near Little River. The body of the young man was found face up in the water today by two boys. A severe wound on the right side of the head just above the temple is mute testimony of the use of some weapon.

Court Reserves Decision in Case

Magistrate Jay Will Not Decide as to Blame for Malahat Collision Until Monday

The taking of evidence in the charge of driving to the common danger, laid against Mr. F. J. Hartle, of Vancouver, whose car collided with one driven by Miss Dorothy Burton, of Toronto, on the Malahat some days ago, was concluded in the provincial police court yesterday. Magistrate Jay reserved his decision until Monday in order to have the opportunity of looking over some of the evidence again.

The evidence produced by both sides showed no excess of speed on the part of either. The collision was followed by the car driven by Miss Burton, and which contained a party of ladies, jumping the ward timber on the side of the road and plunging over an embankment. The injuries sustained by them were not serious.

The witnesses on each side place the blame for the collision on the other. Mr. A. M. Bannerman, who was early on the scene following the accident, testified as an independent witness to what he found at the place. The marks on the road in his opinion showed that accused had pursued a proper course and there was plenty of room for the cars to pass. He was of the opinion that the lady driver of the other car became excited and made a false move which brought about the trouble.

On the other hand, Miss Burton was described as an experienced driver and the occupants of her car testified that the auto was handled in a proper way.

Accused was represented by Mr. R. R. Holland, of Vancouver. The prosecution by the provincial police was conducted by Mr. Robert Owens, while Mr. Gordon Cameron appeared for Miss Burton and the ladies of her party.

Coal Production of Island Is Declining

Production in Whole Province Shows Increase During First Half of Year

According to figures issued yesterday by Hon. William Sloan, Minister of Mines, coal production in British Columbia during the first six months of the present year totalled 1,175,109 long tons, compared with 1,047,461 long tons during the first six months of last year, an increase of 128,469 tons.

The report states that the output of Vancouver Island mines is still running behind that of a year ago, lack of demand and the recent week's stoppage of the mines of the Western Fuel Corporation being held responsible. Island production for the first six months of 1925 is given as 657,287 long tons, compared with 747,009 tons during the same period in 1924, a decline of 89,870 tons.

The activity in the Crow's Nest Pass district this year is responsible for the favorable showing being made by the collieries of British Columbia, the Crow's Nest Pass Company's mines at Michel and Coal Creek, together with the Corbin Company's output being steady, whereas, at this time a year ago, those producers were shut down because of labor trouble.

Below are the Island figures of production for the six months' period compared with those for the same time last year:

French Foreign Minister, who promised that in the matter of debt payment, any payments made to the United States would be equalled by an amount paid to Great Britain. London now discovers, however, through an interview with the French ambassador, that officially France has made no pledge to this effect and is making an effort to repudiate her earlier intimations.

Crime Decrease Permits Closing British Prisons

U.S. Consul Reports Decrease in Criminals in England and Wales Renders 20 Penitentiaries Unnecessary

Third of Total Are Closed

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Figures made public by the Department of Commerce showing that England is closing prisons because of a decrease in crime, make a striking comparison with the increase of crime in the United States.

The criminal statistics of England have been compiled by Alfred Nutting, of the staff of the American Consulate-General at London.

"More than twenty prisons in England and Wales," he reports, "practically a third of the total, have been closed since 1914."

He adds that "there now are only forty prisons in use in the country and that these are by no means fully occupied."

U.S. Prisons Overflowing

While England is closing its prisons, in all parts of the United States prisons are overflowing.

Tax dodgers, auto thieves and bootleggers, Department of Justice experts say, are responsible for the increase of the Federal prisons, but this does not explain the general increase in crime throughout the country. The increase in the population of Federal prisons in the United States may be gathered from the following Department of Justice figures:

Will Lecture on Lepers

Mr. W. H. P. Anderson, General Secretary of the Mission to Lepers, who has just returned from a trip through the Orient where he visited all the leper homes and asylums, will speak in St. Andrew's Church tonight at 8 o'clock. Mr. Anderson is a native of Guelph, Ontario. He went to India some years ago to work among the lepers. On the death of Dr. Wesley Bailey he was appointed general secretary of the mission with headquarters in London, England. Miss Mabel Humphries will sing at the service, which is open to the public.

Says West Coast Road Would End City's Troubles

Mr. Claude L. Harrison Impresses Rotarians With Necessity for the Construction of Highway

Victorians Urged to Aid

The day the west coast road is constructed Victoria's troubles will be at an end and this city will have nothing to fear. This was the prediction made by Mr. Claude L. Harrison, city prosecutor, in an address yesterday at the weekly luncheon of the Victoria Rotary Club in the Chamber of Commerce, in speaking on the imperative necessity of the development of the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Mr. Harrison told his hearers that a road of first-class character could be built at a cost of $348,000, which, he said, he did not regard as a large sum, and pointed out that it had been found that better grades could be secured than exist on the E. & N. Railway.

Not as Expensive as Malahat

"The cost of building the west coast road would not be as great as the expense of constructing the Malahat, but would reveal marvelous wealth that was never obtained on the Malahat. There is an abundance of copper, fish, timber, land, scenery and beaches in the west coast country," observed Mr. Harrison.

The speaker said that the resources of the west coast would be tapped through the opening up of a road, and that all materials would pass through Victoria. It was in the interests of this city to fight vigorously for the highway and he urged local Rotarians to endorse the project whole-heartedly.

Road Must Follow Coastline

The west coast road must follow the coastline, Mr. Harrison contended, if Victoria was to receive benefit from it. He held that the construction of the highway across the Island, instead of following the coastline, would be mere exploitation instead of development. A coast road would be an all-year route and, after a few years, when logging was completed, such a route would be dusty and dry.

Mr. Harrison urged all present to take the special trip up the west coast on the Ss. Princess Maquinna, leaving Victoria on September 1, which is being arranged by the Chamber of Commerce.

Hon. Dr. Tolmie En Route Home

Will Be One of Speakers at Annual Conservative Picnic Next Week

Hon. Dr. S. F. Tolmie, Federal Conservative organizer, and member for Victoria in the Dominion Parliament, will arrive in Victoria early next week, and will be one of the speakers at the annual Conservative picnic to be held at Willows Beach August 5, according to word received yesterday by the Victoria Conservative Association.

Plans for the picnic are rapidly nearing completion, and indications are that the big gathering will eclipse any of the picnics held by the association in past years. One of the special attractions will be a "slogan contest," which will bring $10 to the winner and $5 to the "runner-up." The picnic committee is inviting all people of Victoria and district to submit slogans for use by the Conservative Party in the forthcoming Federal election. Their emphasis on "all people" means not only members of the party, but Liberals, too, including Hon. John Oliver and members of his Cabinet.

Slogans entered in the contest should be sent to Mr. Reginald Hayward, M.P.P., chairman of the picnic committee, Postoffice Box 124, and must be mailed before midnight of August 4.

Mr. J. R. Colley Has to Stand Examination

Court Makes Order for Production of Ledger Sheets and Other Original Documents

Counsel Enters Complaint

Further opportunity is to be given to examine Mr. J. R. Colley, member of the Legislature for Kamloops, in connection with the action launched against him of having contracts with Departments of the Government. It was also ordered by Mr. Justice Murphy in Chambers yesterday, that there should be produced for examination original ledger sheets and original vouchers sought. These, it was explained, had respect to the transactions referred to in the charges and also with regard to dealings between Mr. Colley and the firm of Willcox-Hall, of Kamloops.

The date for the examination is set for next Tuesday. Mr. H. A. Maclean, K.C., who appeared for Mr. Colley, wanted the examination to proceed at once, and specified yesterday afternoon, in view of the fact that Mr. Colley was in the city. This was opposed by Mr. H. B. Robertson, K.C., for the plaintiff, Mr. T. Keene.

Not Producing All

Mr. Robertson raised the complaint that there was not the production of the documents that it was felt could be produced in connection with the case. His side had information that certain documents were in existence and yet they could not have these. He felt that Mr. J. Patterson, the purchasing agent of the Government, could get papers that were not forthcoming. He said that he would require a little time in the matter and suggested Tuesday as the date for examination.

The court said that if the situation was as stated by Mr. Robertson then leave, as sought, should be allowed. If counsel could not agree upon a date for examination he would stand the matter over for a week and then hear them again.

Examination on Tuesday

It was then agreed that Tuesday should be the day for the examination being continued with the production of the documents called for.

The matter came up on an application made a little time ago on behalf of Mr. Colley to dismiss the action which had been launched against him as a member of the Legislature on the ground that it was really based upon the same facts as the action that had been dismissed at trial and which was taken by local Liberals.

Mr. Maclean in opposing the application made yesterday for further examination of Mr. Colley and for documents contended that they did not have the documents that were sought. He took the ground that an action like this for penalties was a civil action and not a criminal matter. The crown was not called upon to assist in any way. All kinds of documents were wanted and then when these were not forthcoming the other side demanded an affidavit from the Government agent as to what had become of his books.

Change of Front

Mr. Robertson pointed out that a week before, when the order was made for the production of documents the other side assured them that they could have all papers. Now the ground was taken that nothing was required to be produced.

"We are not asking any indulgence of the court," said Mr. Robertson. They wanted original documents and among these were the original ledger sheets showing the transactions between Mr. Colley and the Willcox-Hall Company, which was a hardware company. The other side had not evidenced any desire to get documents that the court had ordered should be produced.

Mr. Maclean said that Mr. Patterson stated that he had never seen the documents. These were it appeared little sheets taken from a scratch pad and given by the forest ranger.

The court felt that original documents which were in possession of the parties should be produced. He could not see how he could force the production of others.

Mr. Robertson said that it would be difficult to make him believe that all that could be produced had been forthcoming.

SECRET OF HAPPINESS

The greatest menace on earth to happiness is the ill health with which so many women are afflicted. The young woman is subject to pain and irregularities, the mother to the tortures of displacements with consequent pains, aches and nervousness—the middle aged woman to the uncomfortable conditions caused by this critical age. The one remedy to control these conditions and restore the system to a normal healthy condition is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for fifty years has been restoring sick and ailing women to health and happiness. (Advt.)

Courts Cannot Make Statutes

Mr. Justice Murphy Points Out That the Laws Must Be Interpreted as Made by Legislators

Reserves Decision in Case

The courts do not make the laws. This power resides with the legislators. This condition is acknowledged by Mr. Justice Murphy in deciding whether Lee Back Hing, Wong Yet and Wong Yuen have been properly convicted in the police magistrate's court at Vancouver. These men were tried before Police Magistrate Findlay for violating the Opium and Narcotics Drugs Act, 1923. They were given six months in jail, together with a fine of $200, which is specified in enumerating the minimum penalty. The clause further adds, however, that this fine shall be with costs. It is further set out in the statute that the magistrate shall not have power to reduce the penalty.

The contention of Mr. Stuart Henderson, for the convicted Chinese, is that less than the minimum penalty has been inflicted by the amount of the costs, and that therefore the conviction is bad.

While Mr. Justice Murphy, who heard argument on the matter on a habeas corpus application yesterday morning, did not give an off-hand decision, but took time to consider the cases cited, he pointed out to Mr. A. D. Macfarlane, who appeared for the Crown, some of the difficulties in the way of sustaining the conviction in the face of the statute. It was then that he pointed out that if the statutes were deviated from the result would be that judges would be making the laws and not the legislators.

Mr. Macfarlane argued that there could be no objection to the imprisonment part of the penalty, as it came within the Act. Mr. Henderson contended that the authorities in a case of this kind left no discretion. There could be no separation in the penalty of the imprisonment part and the fine. They formed one whole.

His Lordship pointed out that the statute was quite clear in specifying the penalty. He reserved his judgment.

Lo the Poor Indian Tries to Make Money By Get-Rich-Quick Plan

BRANDON, July 29.—Indians like many others practise "get-rich-quick" schemes. A case in point was brought to light here at the Indian reserve at Griswold, Man. Collecting bounty returns on wolf ears, manufactured from skins of young cubs, was the ingenious method employed.

The ears were turned in to secure the wolf bounty from the municipality. The Redskins figured it was much easier to make ears than to catch wolves. So well did they make the artificial ears, that municipal officers were fooled for some time. Finally the authorities discovered the ruse and Provincial police started an investigation. Three men and a squaw were apprehended. They pleaded guilty to the charge and were warned with a year's suspended sentence.

Cotton Growing Countries of Empire Are to Be Visited by Former Spinner From Lancashire

Mr. A. H. Greensmith, J.P., of Westhoughton, Lancashire, England, was in the city with his wife on Wednesday, and called on Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Boulton, old friends, before joining the motorship Aorangi for New Zealand.

Mr. Greensmith has taken a leading part in the public life of Lancashire, is a former county councillor, and has been a member of numerous county boards and bodies in his locality.

After a life spent in the textile industry as a cotton spinner, Mr. Greensmith is now making an extensive world tour which will occupy him more than a year from the present time, and during which he will see the chief sources of production of cotton, within the Empire, in Asia, Africa and Australia, which he believes will do something to solve the problem which presents itself of, being independent of outside supplies, such as occasioned so much distress in Lancashire during the American Civil War.

He says the day is coming when a long cotton staple is essential, and that particularly in the face of the competition presented by the Asiatic mills manufacturing an article in which the British formerly had a monopoly. These types of produce must be abandoned in place of certain shirtings and other forms of output in which the British mills are still predominant, he declares.

Mr. Greensmith expects to examine the situation in Australia, India, Egypt and other countries suitable for growing high grade cotton capable to meet in competition the sea cotton of the Suthern States.

Salmon Catch Shows Growth

New Record Established by B.C. Canneries Last Year, Says Report

Salmon packed in British Columbia canneries during the year 1924 totaled 1,745,313 cases, constituting a new record. The previous high total was established in 1918 when the pack totaled 1,616,151 cases, and is a big advance over the pack of 1923 which reached 1,341,677 cases.

According to the annual report on fisheries issued yesterday by Hon. William Sloan, commissioner of fisheries, last year's increase was due almost entirely to the growth in the catch of pinks and chums, which, combined, totaled 1,226,424 cases, or seventy-seven per cent of the entire pack. Other grades going to make up the total were 369,603 cases of sockeye; 115,722 cases of coho, and 27,456 cases of spring. The pack of pinks totaled 657,538, and chums, 568,916 cases.

Fraser River Pack

The pack of all species of salmon in the Fraser River system in the province in 1924 totaled 212,059 cases. The combined pink and chum pack was 141,463 cases, or sixty-seven per cent. The sockeye pack was but 39,743, a gain of 8,088 cases over that of the previous year and 8,656 cases less than in the fourth preceding year.

The pack of sockeye in the State of Washington waters of the Fraser River system in 1924 was 69,369 cases. The entire sockeye pack of the Fraser River system totaled 109,112 cases, being 2,000 cases less than four years ago.

The mild cured salmon pack of the province in 1924 was 2,969 tierces, containing aproximately 2,375,000 pounds, and the six fish-freezing plants operated in the province marked 8,405,656 pounds of salmon.

The dry salted herring pack of the province in 1924 was 46,478 tons.

Halibut Catch

The halibut landings of 1924 totaled 56,747,556 pounds, of which 45,466,956 pounds were landed at Canadian and United States ports by American vessels and 11,280,600 pounds by Canadian vessels at B.C. ports. The catch of 1924 was 2,979,954 pounds greater than in 1923. The landings at B.C. ports totaled 32,194,700 pounds, of which 20,914,000 pounds were landed and shipped in bond by United States vessels. Of the total landings in Canadian ports 25,974,400 pounds were landed at Prince Rupert, 2,569,200 pounds at Vancouver and 711,100 pounds at Rutedale.

The report commente favorably on the new Canadian-American halibut treaty, under which a joint commission was established to find means of protecting Pacific Coast halibut fisheries from depletion.

"The ratification of this treaty," the report says, "is a long step in the right direction in the administration of the fisheries in which Canada and the United States are mutually interested. It is the first acknowledgment on their part that one of their great fishing industries cannot be effectively and conservingly administered individually,—that joint and uniform control is necessary."

Tagged Salmon Caught

Attention is called to the fact that nineteen salmon that were tagged by the United States Bureau of Fisheries in Alaska waters during the Summer of 1924 were recaptured in the Skeena and Nass Rivers and adjacent British Columbia waters. The outstanding feature of their capture in B.C. waters, so far as this province is concerned, is that in approaching the coast some of the salmon bound for the Skeena and Nass Rivers are at times associated with salmon seeking Alaska waters to spawn, and in consequence are subject to capture in Alaska fish traps as far north as Summer Straits.

Scales were obtained from but eight of the fish recaptured in the Skeena. Dr. H. Gilbert, noted expert who examined them, states:

"The results have a bearing on the question of homing on the part of fish that had been far distant from their native stream. Each of the eight were undoubted Skeena sockeye. Their scales coincide exactly with the racial features of the Skeena salmon."

In the appendix of the report John Fease Babcock, deputy commissioner of fisheries, reviews the history of the fur-seal industry and the beneficial results to Canada of the protection given the Alaska herds by the Fur Seal Treaty between Great Britain, the United States, Japan and Russia, which became effective in 1912, and which put an end to pelagic sealing.

FEARING THE TRUTH

The word has gone forth that the election campaign to be carried out by the Liberals is to be in the nature of a concentrated attack on Mr. Arthur Meighen, the Conservative leader, and principally upon the ground that he and his party are perfectly ready and willing to face the facts of the situation. Because Mr. Meighen tells what those facts are, facts induced by the present regime at Ottawa, he is to be described by his opponents as a "pessimist." Of course, the people as a whole are not fools. It is easy to see through a campaign of this character. It is, indeed, tantamount to admitting that the Liberals have accomplished too little worth while during their term of office to bother telling the electorate that they should be returned to power because of what they have done. Instead of doing this they are concentrating their attack on Mr. Meighen simply because he is telling the people in straight language of the reasons why the country is not prosperous. We quote comment on the subject from The Toronto Mail and Empire:

The pessimists in this country are the people who maintain that Canada is at present in a highly satisfactory state. The optimists are those who firmly believe that Canada would be in an incomparably better state today if she had protection for her industries. The man who pretends to believe that the country has reason to be thankful because hundreds of its factories are idle, other hundreds operated with reduced working forces, and many at a loss, is lacking either in sanity or honesty. The man who regards as an unmixed blessing the transfer of hundreds of thousands of our population to the United States may be sound-minded but he is not Canadian-minded. His spiritual home is across the line. The Conservative Party is, and always has been, the party of enthusiastic Canadianism, the party that has given leadership to every forward movement in this country, the party that conferred on Canada the great idea of creative statesmanship, the National Policy. Its leaders have always been regarded by their political opponents as too optimistic, but their optimism has been well justified, for all the progress made by this country was made under the Conservative policy. The present leader of the Conservative Party in Canada, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, has the faith in Canada that Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir Charles Tupper had. The present downhill movement will be speedily reversed once he is returned to office, as he will be after the next general election. He is a true optimist, with the vision to see the vastly greater things that will come to this country when its people have thrown off the incubus of the King Government and have once more a fair chance to hold their own against competitors.

INTERNATIONAL ACTION

Mr. A. J. Cook, the secretary of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, says that the crisis with which Britain is faced is no ordinary wage crisis. He describes it as an economic, national and international crisis. He says the miners have built up an "Internationale." Through that means, he says, Britain will not have foreign coal coming into the country at a time her own miners are on strike. He forecast some weeks ago that, as has happened to an extent, the miners in France and Belgium have struck and the idea was that the strike should be simultaneous in the three countries, but apparently the continental miners acted prematurely. Mr. Cook says, too, that the British miners expect sympathetic action on the part of the miners in the United States.

Mr. Cook in the latest days of the crisis has professed a desire for a peaceful solution. The question, he thinks, is could the mining industry under private ownership provide the miners with a living wage. If that could not be done then he believes that the Government should see that the country's basic industry is not hung up. In other words, he wants the mines nationaliaed, the aim for which the Miners' Federation has been fighting for some years past. The miners believe that at last they have the support of the entire British Labor movement and that in the present crisis that movement will be at their back, even though it means fighting the Government.

THE CANCER GERM

The Lancet has been dealing with the discovery of a germ which it is believed is a causative factor in the production of cancer. The Lancet says the new germ is a "filter-passing" organism, that is to say it can pass through the pores of a bacterial filter. It is of extremely minute size. The germ is found in cancers taken from a wide variety of animals, from rodents and other mammals and from human cancers. It does not when injected into healthy animals produce cancers. That production occurs only when the germ has been injected together with extracts of tumors, previously freed entirely from the germ.

The Lancet points out that in cancer two factors are in play, the germ and some substance in the tumor extract which enables the germ to exercise its baleful influence. Dr. W. E. Gye has named this substance the "specific factor." Through the work of Mr. J. E. Barnard, the germ has been seen and photographed. The discovery will give a new impetus to the work of the British Empire Cancer campaign. That organization has just published its second annual report, in which it deals with the vast amount of work now being carried on, and includes in its survey surgery, radiology, bacteriology and biology.

RUSSIA AND LIQUOR

There has been very little note taken of the fact that Russia has abandoned her dry law and has reverted to the practice of having national distilleries. Her experiment with Prohibition was short-lived. Her Bolshevist rulers were anxious to continue the dry law put into force in the early days of the Great War, but the task of enforcing Prohibition proved too great. People made their vodka at home. The authorities annually used to seize hundreds of thousands of stills and confiscate the home brew. The decision was then reached that the Bolshevists might as well return to the custom of the Czars and make revenue out of the sale of liquor. Three hundred national distilleries are now working. What has happened in Russia, says The Manchester Guardian, "is a vigorous reminder that conversion must precede legislation where age-long habits are concerned."

There is a movement afoot whereby the Republican Party will take its place in the deliberations of Dail Eireann. There are 46 Republican members of the Irish Parliament who have been abstaining from participation in its work. What stands in their way, it is claimed, is the oath of allegiance to which they would have to subscribe. The Government of Ireland does not intend to reopen the question of the oath so that it is certain that at least some of the most bigoted Republican members will continue to remain in a state of political suspension.

3-Minute Journeys

By TEMPLE MANNING

Where Charity Becomes Obligatory

The New Year is celebrated far more elaborately in Persia than in the Western world. Not merely a single day but a month is consumed in the attending festivities. And that month offers golden opportunities to the begging dervishes who are so numerous throughout the country.

Under ordinary circumstances, the begging dervish wends his way along the street, with dignity and piety stamped upon his face. Occasionally they stop and offer a flower or a lemon, for which you must give a coin.

But matters change around New Years.

He chooses his victim and he is careful to choose one who is wealthy. Then he literally camps beside the doorstep until he has achieved his purpose.

He makes his temporary home quite comfortable and settles there with his little garden, consisting of a mud pile decorated with flowers and pebbles and beads. Here he sits calmly smoking his pipe. All of his earthly belongings are gathered about him. His wooden stick, studded with spikes, his leopard skin, all the emblems of his trade, are hung up on the wall behind him. His all-important cup, or calabash, carved from the shell of an Indian nut, hangs there too. It is at once a receptacle for the coins he collects and a drinking cup.

All the day, the dervish sits before his tent and when the owner of the house to which he has attached himself appears, he screams his cry of "Hakk, Ya Hakk," which means, "Oh, Truth, Oh God!" When he becomes impatient and feels that he has waited long enough, he blows loudly on his horn, by day or by night, until the poor persecuted family is willing to give him anything in order to be rid of him.

That is the surest way for a beggar to earn his due reward.

Dunwell Mine May Resume Operations

Directors Place Situation Before Shareholders Regarding Offers to Buy

In an interim report sent out to the shareholders of the Dunwell Company by the directors the situation with respect to prospective purchase by outside companies is placed frankly before the holders of stock. The suggestion is thrown out that a meeting of the shareholders may be called within a short time to consider what is the most advisable course to take with respect to the development of the property.

It is pointed out that three principals have been negotiating for the mine, but that the estimate of the ore bodies which cannot be measured definitely in yards in the present stage of development has resulted in a deadlock as far as reaching a satisfactory price is concerned.

The importance of the new strike on the property, it is announced, has prompted a desire on the part of many shareholders and others not directly interested in the mine to see the present company continue its work of development and thus keep the profits within the hands of those interested. This situation is being considered by the directors and if no satisfactory offer to purchase is made within a reasonable time a meeting will be called to consider the proposition. In the meantime the negotiations to sell will also be continued, and if any satisfactory offer is received the shareholders will at once be consulted.

Anglo-Japan Treaty Signed

LONDON, July 30.—Baron Hay Asahi, Japanese ambassador, and Foreign Secretary Chamberlain today signed a new Anglo-Japanese treaty, regarding trade and navigation. The new agreement modifies an existing commercial treaty and is understood to be without political significance.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

Now that all the great authorities have pronounced judgment upon the life and works of the late Colonel Bryan, may we be permitted to say of the Great Commoner of the country where there are no commoners, "After life's fitful fever he sleeps well?"

The life of the Colonel was indeed feverish. The Colonel's blood was generally at the boiling point upon some controversial subject. He was a fervent advocate of what he called temperance. He really was not a temperate man. He was deep and sincere in his religious convictions. He was an ardent and pugnacious politician. He was always ready to fight "at the drop of the hat" in defence of all his principles, political, religious or philosophical. In fact, the fires within him burned so fiercely that they consumed his great natural strength, and he died before his physically appointed time.

And what were the achievements of this valiant and pugnacious crusader? He died respected of all men because of his honesty and sincerity. That is all that can be said of him—and that is saying a great deal considering the political conditions of the times. If he had been as unscrupulous as many of his political contemporaries he might have amassed vast wealth. He accumulated enough and something to spare, but everything he possessed he came by honestly.

Colonel Bryan's friends in the social and political spheres believed he was a great orator. He had none of the attributes of an orator. He was simply a fluent and long-winded speaker upon the subjects in which he specialized. He was not gifted with any powers of imagination. He was a literalist and despised all schools of speculative philosophy.

We can imagine Colonel Bryan adopting the ironical words of Washington Irving: "It has ever been the task of one race of philosophers to demolish the works of their predecessors and elevate more splendid phantasies in their stead, which in their turn are demolished and replaced by the air castles of a succeeding generation. Thus it would seem that knowledge and genius, of which we make such great parade, consist but in detecting the errors and absurdities of those who have gone before, and devising new errors and absurdities, to be detected by those who are to come after us. Theories are the mighty soap bubbles with which the grown-up children of science amuse themselves—while the honest vulgar stand gazing in stupid admiration and dignify these learned vagaries with the name of wisdom! Surely Socrates was right in his opinion that philosophers are but a soberer sort of madmen, busying themselves in things totally incomprehensible, or which, if they could be comprehended, would be found not worth the trouble of discovery.

"For my own part, until the learned have come to an agreement among themselves, I shall content myself with the account handed down to us by Moses; in which I do but follow the example of our ingenius neighbors of Connecticut, who in their first settlement proclaimed that the colony should be governed by the laws of God—until they had time to make better. . . . It appears, I say, and I make the assertion deliberately, without fear of contradiction, that this globe really was created, and that it is composed of land and water."

The above constitutes a very simple and a very comfortable philosophy. It is the philosophy we intend to make the guiding principle of our life. Whether the creation of the earth and all things upon it was the work of a day or a week or centuries or aeons, one thing is certain: man took no part in that work. If the process of creation is still proceeding, man cannot by wrangling or persecution arrest that process. Therefore why make our short span of life miserable or shorter by quarreling amongst ourselves about our theories of creation? If Colonel Bryan's theory was sound, he knows all about it now. We also shall know all about it in due time. In the meantime, as a simple but true philosopher once said, "Lor,' let us be comfortable!"

An American authority on dress says man will soon become the gay bird of the human family. A revolution is pending and will be with us shortly. The male has been surveying the gorgeous colors hitherto reserved for the female, considers them good and is about to appropriate them for his own adornment. Therefore if you see a man strutting along the streets with laces and ribbons and feathers decorating appropriate parts of his person, do not stop in your tracks and stare at him. That would be a rude manifestation.

We already have noted a tendency on the part of the male to clothe himself in garments of many colors, and to stick big feathers in his hat. We have contented ourselves with attributing the phenomenon to a process of evolution proceeding on the other side of the imaginary boundary line. Canadians have been seen clothed in garments of many and loud colors, too, but they have always seemed somewhat self-conscious when caught in full regalia. They will get over that. Consider the Scot who never saw the kilt or the bonnet with the blackcock's feather in it until he arrived in this country. Observe how jauntily he carries himself. But the Englishman, who considers quiet colors, with an occasional concession to spacious checks, the proper if not the only thing, how would he feel and look if arrayed in radiant trousers and flaming tunic, with a tin sword dangling at his side when it was not getting between his legs?

Water for Saanich

Sir,—Please pardon me troubling you again, but I should like to say that, despite all history, past, present or to come (excuse the Irish in me), that the water users of Saanich, who are reasonable people and want good water and lots of it, can in my opinion make a reasonable bargain with their neighbors, the people who own the water, if the petty politician on both sides (who may or may not have a private axe to grind) will allow it to be done. The people of Saanich are wise enough not to want to spend several hundreds of thousands of dollars, unless compelled, and it would be very bad business for the city of Victoria to compel them to it and cause an opposition supply. Therefore, as mutual compromise is the fundamental rule of business, it will be wisdom for the respective principals to make a real effort to come down from dreamland, because there is a very sore spirit among the people who resent what they consider fooling with the matter, with them as probable sufferers.

Pruning the Boulevard Trees

Sir,—Referring to your further editorial of July 26, I take it that you have made, or have had made by a competent jury, a critical inquiry into the methods practised by the park authorities. If this has not been done, I leave it to you, Mr. Editor, is it not unfair and un-British to make such a sweeping condemnation of such methods, as you have done?

I hold no brief from those concerned, have held no conversation with those responsible for the care of the boulevards, and have not seen the trees alluded to under the undignified term of being "bobbed," so can therefore not be accused of any partiality.

The motto of "Fiat justitia ruat coelum" is a good one. The quotations from the authorities furnished you regarding the care of trees are quite well known, even to the veriest tyro in arboriculture. I confess not to have noticed the horrible examples of trees in and about London, but my experience is limited in this respect. Those I have seen I thought rather fine specimens.

A Question of Economics

Sir,—Had the writer of the article which drew such a lengthy letter from Mr. Ruffle taken time and space to fully expound his statement that the British "have now to pay back their enormous borrowings, not at par, but, allowing for wartime inflation, probably at twice par," I think both Mr. Ruffle and others who might have been puzzled by this statement would have recognized the correctness of the statement, and would realize that all other debtor nations are in the same position.

After the war, it will be remembered, there was a loud call for "deflation," it being thought by many that economic problems would disappear could things be brought back to the level, or near the level, of 1914. It was not realized by those making this call that every step down in the level of prices and wages meant a step up in the value of the dollar, and rendered the payment of debts more difficult. For instance, taking a sum of $100 as an example. During the period when Victory loans were being floated wages for skilled and semi-skilled labor were roughly $1 per hour, and $100 represented 100 hours of labor. Today wages are much lower, probably not more than two-thirds, and as the $100 debt still stands, this means that $150 must be expended to repay the loan.

If your correspondent and others will examine the figures for the past ten or twelve years carefully, they will find this actually is the fact. Hence, the hundreds of millions borrowed during the war are now worth from 50 per cent to double what they were when loaned, and unless there is some move made to "deflate" the debt proportionately to the general deflation, debtor nations, civic authorities and individuals are assuming a burden of debt for which they secured absolutely nothing of value when the obligation was assumed.

Huxley and Wilberforce

Sir,—In the report of a sermon by Dean Quainton on the Dayton trial, which appeared in your issue of July 26, the reporter seems to have made a hopeless muddle of the historic passage of arms between Bishop Wilberforce and Huxley, at the meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, at Oxford, in June 1860; for I cannot believe that the Dean related it as it appears in your paper.

Huxley's reply to Wilberforce was such a delightful bit of clear thinking and terse speech that it is a pity that it should have appeared in other than a reasonably correct form. I, therefore, give you an account of the incident as it appears in the Life and Letters of Charles Darwin.

"The Bishop was up to time, and spoke for full half-an-hour with inimitable spirit, emptiness and unfairness. It was evident from his handling of the subject that he had been 'crammed' up to the throat, and that he knew nothing at first hand; in fact, he used no argument not to be found in his 'Quarterly' article. He ridiculed Darwin badly and Huxley savagely, but all in such dulcet tones, so persuasive a manner, and in such well-turned periods, that I who had been inclined to blame the president for allowing a discussion that could serve no scientific purpose now forgave him from the bottom of my heart. Unfortunately the Bishop, hurried along by the currant of his own eloquence, so far forgot himself as to push his attempted advantage to the verge of personality in a telling passage in which he turned round and addressed Huxley: (I have forgotten the precise words, and quote from Lyell). 'The Bishop asked Huxley whether he was related by his grandfather's or grandmother's side to an ape.' Huxley replied to the scientific arguments of his opponent with force and eloquence, and to the personal allusion with a self-restraint that gave dignity to his crushing rejoinder.

"Many versions of Mr. Huxley's speech were current; the following report of his conclusion is from a letter addressed by the late John Richard Green, then an undergraduate, to a fellow-student, now Professor Boyd Dawkins. 'I assert, and I repeat, that a man has no reason to be ashamed of having an ape for his grandfather. If there were an ancestor whom I should feel shame in recalling, it would be a man, a man of restless and versatile intellect, who, not content with an equivocal success in his own sphere of activity, plunges into scientific questions with which he has no real acquaintance, only to obscure them by an aimless rhatoric, and distract the attention of his hearers from the real point at issue by eloquent digressions and skilled appeals to religious prejudice.'"

Those who are interested in this subject may like to know that, on July 11, "Nature," published by Macmillan, London, issued a special supplement giving the opinions of some of the chief educators in Great Britain on the prohibition of the teaching of the principles of evolution in some of the United States. It is refreshing reading, after the balderdash that has been emanating from Dayton and elsewhere.

With Stabilized Mark, Germans Again Saving

BERLIN, July 30.—Recent savings bank figures show that the Germans are beginning to save again, and in the past year and a half the number of depositors has grown rapidly. During the inflation period no one in Germany thought of saving money.

It was a policy of either "spend it before it is worthless," or of "get-rich-quick." Gradually, however, with the stabilizing of the mark value, the wisdom of economy has begun to reassert itself. Government officials and brain workers furnish the largest percentage of the depositors.

Slit Man's Lips for Smoking

Fierce Ruler of Ancient Persia Inflicted Barbarous Punishments for Too Free Use of Tobacco

What would Abbas I, that mighty and terrible ruler of Persia some centuries ago, think of the modern world's annual consumption of cigarettes? It was Abbas who cut off the lips of those of his subjects who smoked and the noses of any who ventured to take snuff. Once he found a man selling tobacco and threw man and weed together into the fire.

In 1610 Mohammed IV punished a citizen of Constantinople who, contrary to the royal edict, was discovered smoking by ordering a hole pierced through the cartilage of his nose and a pipe inserted into it. The offender was then seated on the back of an ass, with his face toward the tail, and driven through the streets of the city, while the town criers announced his crime and punishment.

Czar Michael Fedorowitz of Russia not only had his subjects beaten publicly for smoking, but often went even further; and were this crime committed a second time death was the penalty. In 1634 eyewitnesses stated that they saw eight men and one woman punished for smoking.

It is a long jump from that date to 1908, but in the latter year writers were beginning to comment unfavorably on women smoking. One commentator of that date, referring to the "unlovely" list of feminine smokers, stated there were to be found on it the names of many women of renown. He had been told the Empress of Austria smoked from thirty to forty cigarettes daily. The Dowager Empress of Russia was also addicted to the use of the weed, as well as the Queen of Rumania, the Queen Regent of Spain, the Queen of Italy and the Queen of Portugal. The latter, however, "came honestly by her smoking proclivities, her mother being a devotee of the weed."

Today the situation is startlingly altered, and critics of bygone times might discover themselves at a loss for words as they surveyed the modern inroads of tobacco. A ruler like Abbas I or Mohammed IV would find his kingdom sadly depopulated were he to exact the extreme penalty. Difficulty in securing even an obliging executioner would complicate the case.—New York Times.

League to Discuss Road Difficulties

Good Roads Body to Hold Convention Here in September—Feature Island Problems

Resolutions favoring the extension of Island Highway paving from about eight miles from Colwood northward, or an alternative scheme of surfacing parts of tha road, will be discussed at the forthcoming convention of the Good Roads League of British Columbia, which will be held here early in September, according to Mr. Frank Bird, secretary of the organization, who was a visitor in the city yesterday.

The proposed road to the west coast of the Island will be discussed at length at the convention, Mr. Bird said. Another important subject will be the question of ear-marking a larger proportion of Government automobile revenue for roads purposes.

"We want the people of Vancouver Island to understand that our organization is Province-wide in its scope, that we are as much interested in the problems of Vancouver Island as in those of any other district in British Columbia," Mr. Bird declared.

As usual the good roads convention will be held at the time of the annual convention of the Union of B. C. Municipalities. Although definite dates have not yet been fixed, the gathering will in all probability be held in the first week of September.

Says Rotarians Work for Future Peace of World

Mr. Hank Manning, International Sergeant-at-Arms, Tells of Rotary's Mission in Development of Boys

Say Good-Bye to Mr. Kelly

Rotary throughout the world was interesting itself in boys' work programmes, working to build up the character of the coming manhood and thereby making an important contribution to the cause of the future peace of the universe, Rotarian Hank Manning, of Seattle, told members of the Victoria Rotary Club at its luncheon gathering yesterday in the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Manning, who is International Rotary sergeant-at-arms, informed the gathering that he had never before been so impressed with the value of membership in the ranks of Rotary as he had been while attending the recent international convention of the organization in Cleveland, Ohio.

Tells of Rotary Activities

The speakar pointed out that 21 Rotarians, each representing a different country in the world, told the Clavaland convention what work had been done by Rotary in the respective countries in connection with boys' activities.

More than 13,000 Rotarians attendad the opening session of the convention and there were 6,500 members present at each of the business meetings, Mr. Manning declared.

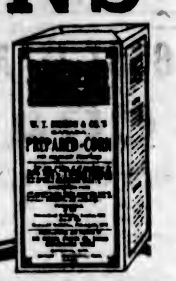

The Victoria Club bade farewell yesterday to Vice-President William N. Kelly, who is leaving for Vancouver, whara he will in future reside. President Bob Mayhew expressed the members' regret at "Bill's" departure, and the Rotarians honored Mr. Kelly by singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," followed by three lusty cheers and a tiger.

B.C. Taxes Debated By Irrigationists

Delegates Claim Taxation Demanded Cannot Be Met Out of Earnings

KELOWNA, July 30.—The somewhat controversial question of high irrigation taxes and tolls on farm lands in the irrigation areas of British Columbia was discussed by the Western Canada Irrigation Association at this afternoon's session. A resolution on the matter was introduced, and after a somewhat lengthy discussion it was decided that it should be tabled until the Friday session. Some of the delegates, and more particularly those from the Prairie Provinces, were disposed to shy at the proposal because of their lack of familiarity with conditions in British Columbia.

The sponsors of the resolution claimed that users of water cannot possibly pay the taxation demanded out of earnings and that much of it will presently be lost to the present owners unless reasonable Government assistance is forthcoming.

Interesting addresses were delivered by A. E. Palmer, Lethbridge; Major P. J. Jennings, of Calgary, and others, and discussion followed in each case.

A resolution of thanks to the Federal and Provincial Governments for their help and guidance in the various new irrigation projects was passed.

The delegates were entertained at luncheon, which was presided over by Mayor Sutherland.

Victoria Liberal Is Tory Picnicker

Fomer President of Victoria Liberal Association Officiates at Vancouver

From comment heard in local Liberal circles yesterday, the report that Mr. Frank R. Carlow officiated as starter of races at the big Conservative party picnic at Hastings Park, Vancouver, on Wednesday, was accompanied by considerable astonishment. Victoria Conservatives, however, received the news philosophically. Only an example of another man seeing the light, was their view.

Mr. Carlow, up until the middle of 1924, was president of the Victoria Liberal Association, and in the last Provincial election was the defeated Liberal candidate in the riding of Esquimalt, which elected Mr. R. H. Pooley, now the Conservative party leader.

Mr. Pooley returned from Vancouver yesterday morning thoroughly convinced of the rapidly growing strength of Conservatism in the Terminal City. Over six thousand people attended the picnic, he said, and everybody was filled with enthusiasm for the party's progress.

Alleged Abductors Elect Jury Trials

Two Robinsons and Kidnappers Face Vancouver Court and Are Formally Charged

VANCOUVER, July 30.—O. B. V. Robinson, head of the Canadian Detective Agency, and his son, William Robinson, charged with abduction of Wong Foon Sing last March, elected trial by jury when they appeared before Judge Cayley today. V. W. Norton, committed for trial separately on a kidnapping charge, also elected jury trial and the three will come up at the Fall assizes.

The four others committed on the similar charges, H. O. McDonald, Point Grey police commissioner; John Murdock, chief of police of Point Grey; Sergeant Kirkham and J. S. Cowper, were not present for the reason that they are not required to elect while out on bail, the charges against them in the ordinary course being heard at the next assizes.

Norton and the two Robinsons are being held at Oakalla, being unable to secure the necessary bail.

Active Grain Exchange At Vancouver Expected To Come Into Existence

VANCOUVER, July 30.—With the shipping permit system removed, and with Vancouver elevators thrown open to receive grain without restriction, as announced by the railway companies today in Winnipeg, creation of a cash and futures grain market in Vancouver, functioning as in Winnipeg, is regarded as inevitable, it was stated here tonight. Storage of unsold grain in local elevators by prairie farmers, it is expected, will make possible the functioning of an active exchange in Vancouver, quoting to the trade a Vancouver price which will fluctuate on a basis of supply and demand independently from Winnipeg.

Advantage of the new regulation effected by the railways lies in the fact, it is said, that the Western route will be available for use by private shippers as well as by large companies.

Pittsburgh Sends Large Party Here

Commandery of Knights Templars Arrived to Spend Day en Route to Alaska

Pittsburgh Commandery of the Knights Templars brought a large party to the city yesterday to spend 24 hours before leaving on a visit to Alaska. It is understood that some of the party will proceed directly East, while members from Frankford Temple, New Jersey, will join the Pittsburgh Knights in embarking on the Princess Charlotte for the North.

The programme includes a visit to Dawson and Whitehorse, and to other points in the Yukon, the intention being to return to the Coast in time to catch the sailing of the Princess Louise southbound. A special White Pass & Yukon train will be engaged by the party.

This commandery is an important one, and was well represented in the great gatherings at Seattle this week of the Knights Templars of the United States. The members are paying a visit to the chief points of interest during their visit here.

Novel "Stunts" Dance

Never in the history of all the Summer schools for teachers which have been held in Victoria has such a successful social gathering been held as that on Wednesday evening, when 130 visiting Eastern Canadian teachers were entertained at the high school gymnasium with a dance and "stunts" programme of rare novelty.

More than five hundred people were present, the student teachers who were the hosts producing, at short notice, features which could not have been more entertaining with months of preparation. These "stunts," prepared in response to an interclass competition, brought into rivalry the arts students, literature students, music and primary grade and agriculture and domestic science students. The primary grade students won the prize with a highly effective shadow-dance and pictures, although the music class, with its choir of monks, and the literature class with its dramatization of nursery rhymes, were close competitors for honors. The judging was done by Dean Laird, one of the visiting teachers, and Mr. F. T. C. Wickett, one of the Summer school faculty.

Ozard's orchestra furnished the music for the general dancing, which formed the culminating diversion of the evening. Refreshments were served before the party broke up at midnight. The gymnasium decorations had never been more artistic or colorful.

Vancouver Pioneer Summoned by Death

Mr. H. M. Burwell, Thirty-Nine Years Resident of Mainland City, Passes Away

VANCOUVER, July 30.—Vancouver's few remaining pioneers of the days just following the fire of 1886 sustained a loss in the death tonight of H. M. Burwell, 63, a resident of the city for the past thirty-nine years. The late Mr. Burwell was for many years a member of the engineering and surveying firm of Garden, Hermon & Burwell, well known in the early days.

Coming to Vancouver from London, Ontario, Mr. Burwell engaged in engineering and surveying projects, many of which were associated with the water works development of the city, and culminating in the surveying and planning of the Lake Burwell water supply, upon which it is expected the city will depend under new plans to augment its water reserves.

As a pioneer resident of British Columbia, he came to the Province 34 years ago from Ontario. While in Nanaimo he was proprietor of a blacksmith and carriage establishment for 25 years.

Dane Criticizes Privilege Granted to U.S. Explorer

COPENHAGEN, July 30. — The Danish explorer, Peter Freuchen, launches a violent newspaper attack on the Danish Government for permitting the American explorer, MacMillan, to search the ruins of Viking homesteads in Greenland on terms hitherto refused to highly reputed Danish explorers.

Freuchen winds up his attack by saying that while Amundsen remained unheard from, any attempt at saving him—even by MacMillan—might have been tolerated, but now that Amundsen is safe there is no reason to grant MacMillan any facilities.

Northern Hamlet Turns Out Early to Greet Baron Byng

PORT SIMPSON, N.W.T., July 30.—The Distributor did not catch all asleep when her siren blew at 4 o'clock this morning. When she landed Baron Byng, every loyal Briton was present, whether civilian or in uniform, and the island was at its best, bedecked in every British flag available.

The R.C.M.P., in their bright uniforms, were conspicuous in line, and the wireless staff stood in dress parade. At the Mounted Police barracks His Excellency questioned each man regarding former service.

When asked for his opinion of the country Baron Byng replied: "I have lived over fifty years and nothing so far has made such an impression on me."

Less Politics, More Economy, Canada's Needs

Industrial Development Essential in West, Says Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, Now on Way to City

BANFF, July 30.—Canada's needs today are less politics and more economy, an amalgamation of the Eastern, Central and Western viewpoints, and a Canadian policy that will lead to a development of its industries and the obliteration of all differences between the races and religions existing in this country.

This summarizes an interview here today with Lieutenant-Governor H. Cockshutt, of Ontario, president of the Cockshutt Plow Co., and "baby" director of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Leaving Politics Behind

Governor Cockshutt declared that he would be through with politics when his term as Governor ends this year; this in spite of the fact that his name is already being mentioned by certain factions in the East as a political prospect.

"The lesson of tolerance is one of the great things that Canada must learn," said the Governor. "At present we have an Eastern Canadian policy and a Western Canadian policy, and to some extent religious and racial policies. Canada has a brilliant future before it which cannot be stopped, but which can be greatly retarded if we do not early learn the lesson of tolerance and co-operation. We must learn to concede to others that they have a right to their own opinions. Then each must give and take until we have formulated a true Canadian policy."

West Held to Need Factories

Governor Cockshutt expressed the belief that continued efforts to attract only agricultural immigrants to Western Canada would lead to the chronic seasonal unemployment which now exists in certain parts of South America. Industrial development in Western Canada is not only very practicable, but urgently desirable, if for no other reason than to make its inhabitants wage earning the year round, he said.

After ten days at Banff, Governor Cockshutt will visit Vancouver and Victoria.

City & District

Asks Flag Display—The Chamber of Commerce appeals to merchants to display their pavement flags today in honor of the parties of Knights Templars which will visit the city from the Seattle convention.

T.B. Veterans' Picnic—Members of the Tuberculous Veterans' Association and families attending the T.B. picnic at Little Cordova Bay tomorrow, August 1, are advised that in order to obtain transportation a change in the time of departure is necessary, which will be 1:30 p.m., instead of 2 p.m., as previously arranged.

Show Schedule Issued—Another interesting programme is promised at the annual exhibition of the Cowichan Agricultural Society, to judge from the prize list which has just been issued. The fair dates are September 18 and 19. The divisions are on similar lines to the well established classes of past years.

Drove Too Fast—Mr. D. A. Stewart, charged in the Esquimalt police court yesterday afternoon with driving to the common danger, was fined $20. The evidence went to show that as Chief Dawley came out from the municipal hall he was obliged to stop in the middle of the road to avoid a collision. Accused is an expert driver and had been at one time employed as demonstrator. The Saanich Chief is now a little wary of experts.

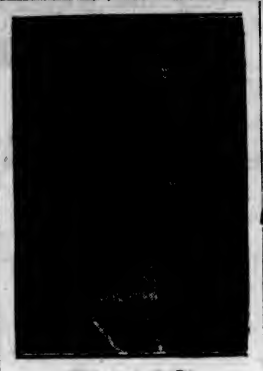

Tagged Ducks—The carcasses of two Mallard ducks, each with a numbered metal tag affixed to a leg, were found at Elk Lake yesterday. The tags bore the numbers 305,347 and 305,335 and the request that the reader furnish the Biological Survey at Washington, D.C., with information concerning the point and time at which the birds were found. Mayor Pendray will comply with the request.

Summer School Doings—The Summer School for Teachers is to close next week with an "open day" all next Thursday, when the public will be given an opportunity of seeing something of the work which has been done by the 500 students this year. There will be the usual weekly dance for the students next Wednesday evening, and on Saturday the school will visit the naval dockyard and drydock, Esquimalt.

Bishop to Visit Here—Rt. Rev. Bishop Brewing, of Toronto, head of the Reformed Episcopal Church, has reached the Coast, and after a two weeks' visit with the Vancouver and New Westminster congregations will come to Victoria. He is expected by the local congregation to be with them over the two Sundays, August 17 to 24, and dividing his time between the Church of Our Lord and the Happy Valley congregation.

Two Young Girls Trek Over Trail To Port Renfrew

Miss Gretel Nicholson and Miss Jean Nicholson, accompanied by their father, Major Geo. Nicholson, arrived in the city yesterday evening after completing a strenuous hike over the long trail between Jordan River and Port Renfrew, to examine the exact nature of the proposed road up the West Coast. The two girls are the first members of their sex to cross the trail during the past ten years. The only other white women to achieve such a gruelling test were Mrs. J. G. Brown and Mrs. F. Hall, who went over the trail ten years ago.

Stop-overs were made at night by Major Nicholson and his daughters at old deserted gold-mine camps. They are now registered at the Empress Hotel, and will interview Mr. C. F. W. Schwengers, president of the Chamber of Commerce, today and outline the condition of the present trail, as the Victoria Chamber of Commerce is interested in the extension of the road from Jordan River to Port Renfrew. A motion to this effect was adopted at the recent meeting of the Associated Boards of Trade of Vancouver Island at Duncan.

New Zealand Papers Urge Aid for Navy

Journals of Southern Dominion Say Time Has Come to Accept Full Responsibility

WELLINGTON, N.Z., July 30.—The Dominion joins other New Zealand newspapers in discussing the naval policy of the Dominions and states that the time is at hand when the British Dominions must either accept their full responsibilities in the matter of naval defence of the Empire or dispense with the measure of protection on which they have hitherto relied.

The Wellington Post says that some day the thankfulness with which the Dominions see the Mother Country facing her imperial obligations may inspire some of them to do likewise.

The Herald, Auckland, says a readjustment of the cost of the navy is long overdue. "Britain has been very patient," The Herald adds, "and the Dominions have taken full advantage of her greatness of heart. The cruiser dispute (in the British House of Commons) must be interpreted as a critical point in the wider question of Empire naval defence."

Use of Strong Drinks Getting Popular in East

Near and Far Countries Are Adopting Social Ways and Refreshments of the West, Convention Told

Crime Also Follows Suit

EDINBURGH, July 30.—The young East is rapidly adopting the social ways of the West, delegates from the Orient told the recent World Convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Speakers from temperance organizations of Egypt, Burma, India, China and Japan told the same story of younger generations of peoples with age-old traditions of abstinence and asceticism handed down through "religion and philosophy, making free use of the cocktail, champagne cup and stronger drinks at social functions.

Flora Hanna, a youthful delegate from Cairo, described the Egyptian people as a race of "traditional prohibitionists," asserting that they have no national beverage. Young men of Egypt, however, are taking to Western drinks along with Western ways, she said. She detailed temperance work since its inauguration in Cario in 1922. Last year 7,000 Egyptian women presented a petition to the British Government asking for prohibition.

Drinks Increasingly Used

The Burmese people, according to Miss Mae Butt, delegate from Burma, should be prohibitionists by the teachings of Buddhism. Foreign drinks are increasingly used at social functions in Burma, she said. She attributed the increase in crime in Burma to increased consumption of alcoholic beverages, other than toddy, the native drink.

Miss Asa Matsuoka, of Tokio, a student at the University of Pennsylvania, testified to increasing use of Western drinks among young Japanese. There is a counter temperance movement growing up in Japan, however, she told the convention.

Situation Explained

"I am a student, an unfinished product," she said in broken English. "But I am the fact which proves that young Japan is taking an active interest and is moving up in the work."

The situation in China was explained by Christine Tinling, paid organizer for the World W.C.T.U., who recently returned from temperance work there. She asserted that there was a growing sentiment among educated young Chinese that they must be able to drink Western beverages to prove their educations.

Cuba Will Revive Capital Punishment

After Lapse of Nineteen Years All Future Death Sentences to Be Executed

HAVANA, July 30.—Capital punishment, unknown in Cuba since 1906, is to have a revival. President Machado recently stated that all future death sentences will be executed. Two cases, both from Pinar del Rio, have been confirmed by the criminal section of the Supreme Court, sentencing Valentin Martinez and Nazario Hernandes to death.

"I have not yet received the sentence which condemns to death Martines," said Secretary of Justice Barraque, "but if there exists no reason to the contrary, it is certain that the president and his secretary of justice will inflexibly comply with the law.

"And the sentence of death of our courts, to whose majesty we all have profound respect, will be complied with quickly and without procrastination, in the form which our legislation places in force."

Secretary of the Presidency Virato Gutirres, in an emphatic statement, said the President intended to sanction the sentence as soon as it reaches him, and does not intend to commute any death sentences imposed by the courts, but will see that they are carried out.

It Takes All Kinds to Make a World—Fortunately the Nicest Kind Is Prevalent in Victoria—The City of Curio Shops—Splendid Work Done by the Red Cross Workshop Men—High Neckline Is Shown in Newest Sweaters at Spencer's

Alas! poor Tinker Belle! Strange as it may seem, there are tradespeople in Victoria who persist in blindly misinterpreting the nature and meaning of her column!

It is a sad, sad state of affairs when people are too short-sighted to be able to see the things which are to their advantage, as well as to the advantage of the community. Do try to understand that this column is not an advertising scheme, but a "honest to goodness" attempt to remind all the gentle readers who read it of the perfectly adequate shopping possibilities in their own city, and the sheer lack of necessity of going anywhere else to make their purchases.

Of course, co-operation on the part of all concerned is an essential to success in matters of this sort, and I can do nothing unless I am met halfway by the people to whom I am trying to be of assistance. But, behold! —we are becoming serious, and, after all, it takes all kinds to make a world. Fortunately, the kind I find most frequently in my rambles about the shops are the courteous and considerate kind. To these the others—the inconsiderate ones—are folls, as thorns are folls to roses.

Victoria, especially as compared with her big sister across the water, is looked upon as a small city, but she is decidedly rich in shops. By reason of the infinite number of antique shops which line her streets, she may become known in time as the "City of Curio Shops."

Murdoch's antique shop, on Fort Street, is one of the most attractive places of this kind in Victoria. It is an old house of bungalow type, with a beautiful and valuable Colonial door, for which the sum of $500 was offered by an American two years ago, and refused.

The small, square garden surrounding it is radiant with flowers, impertinently arranged like the colors of an old-fashioned sampler, such as our grandmothers embroidered with diligent fingers, and indicative of the real articles to be found within.

Mrs. Napier, who continues the business in Mrs. Murdoch's name, has a new shipment every six months, and makes a trip once a year to collect personally the rarest antiques she can find.

The rooms of the bungalow are artistically arranged to show their precious contents to the best advantage. The gleam of seashells and the soft-hued delicacy of flowers are mirrored at in the exquisite pieces of Dresden china seen there. One of the loveliest of these is a many-branched candlestick of Meissen china, from the Imperial factory at Dresden. This once shone in the castle of the Duke of Breadalbane, but because of high taxation embarrassing His Grace, was sold along with much of his furniture and silver.

I saw a sedate grandfather clock ticking the moments from antiquity, and in another corner of the same room a grandmother clock, something of which I had never heard. Indeed, they are very rare, only three ever having passed through the shop. Its distinction from the grandfather clock rests in its stature, which is two feet less.

Dining-room furniture in glowing golden, old Dutch marquetry, finely inlaid, practically filled one room. A brass fireplace from a Georgian house in Edinburgh, acquired when the place was being demolished, was flanked by andirons in the shape of a lion and a unicorn of wrought iron. These creatures once had the splendid responsibility of upholding the coat-of-arms over a public house in the New Forest.

A set of Waterford goblets are amongst the rarest objects there. A great deal of the so-called Waterford glass must suffer the same fate as the "Mayflower" ancestors, for the firm that made it was too small and existed for too short a time to have produced as much glass as is claimed to be in the possession of proud owners of today. So real Waterford glass is a treasure to be prized.

Beautiful pieces of old Bohemian glass and the modern versions of it, known as Czecho-Slovakian glass, throw their luminous, jewel-colored reflections on the walls, floors and ceilings of one room, softening the light into the diffused effect produced by stained glass windows.

I love best of all the things that make me laugh, things that please by quaintness and personality, and that is why of all the things I saw, the one I wanted most to buy was an old, old conception of the map of America. A skilfully-employed needle had worked it finely into a sampler a hundred and fifty years ago; quite that long, at the very least, according to the estimation of experts. And it gives one as good an idea as one could get, I imagine, of the darkness of ignorance in which people of long ago lived concerning the geography of the New World.

From Hudson's Bay, down and around through Panama and up again to Southern California, the coast line is well understood and defined, but beyond that, geography must have been as nebulous as cloud, for imagination has had to serve to lead the needle on the rest of its perilous journey up the Northwest coast. Beyond a little circle about the Hudson's Bay, Canada simply doesn't exist!

I wanted a pretty basket made in which to send flowers to a bride; and remembering some baskets I had seen at the Home Products Fair in the Spring, I went to the Red Cross Workshop. Major Okell, the manager, showed me the shop throughout, and I found it exceedingly interesting.

The shop was the first of its kind in Canada. It was established by the Red Cross Association here, as a haven for men medically passed as physically unfit to earn their living.

The scheme worked out so well that it was soon granted a Government subsidy, and similar shops are now established in Vancouver, Winnipeg, Toronto, Kingston, Hamilton, Montreal, Halifax and Saint John.

The disabled men have paradoxically proved their ability by producing work of the very finest sort. Their basket-weaving is beautiful and varied, and includes the mending and recaning of wicker furniture.

They make and copy furniture to order, as well as ladders, boxes and cedar chests. The broken bones of old chairs are marshaled into unity again. Souvenir pin trays, of wicker and glass, framing postcards with local scenes, are made by the dozens and an infinite variety of picture frame mouldings is always carried in stock.

Next week the making of toys for Christmas will begin. Carts and scooters, doll beds and doll houses will lend a portion of the workshop a Santa Claus atmosphere.

The returned soldiers' work is undeniably as good as that produced anywhere else in town, and really I think the work they did before should be allowed to weigh in the balance when the question arises as to which place to go for that particular sort of thing.

In the window of the hardware shop of George Powell & Son, on Government Street between Yates and Johnson Streets, there is such a bright collection of miniature souvenir totem poles, made by the West Coast Indians, as well as some beautiful basketwork made by the women of the tribes.

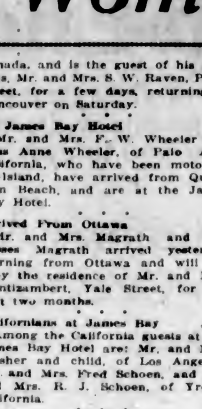

A special sale of pull-overs and sleeveless Summer sweaters is in full swing at Spencer's. These are all very much reduced, but although the season has so nearly reached its end, there is still necessity for pretty light colored sweaters, and there are garments among them of shades sufficiently quiet and reserved to be worn over dresses in the Winter.

Tourists seem to be more fond of Scotch and English woolens than of anything else we have to offer them and have bought freely of the smart suits and sweaters carried by David Spencer, Limited. The other day Yvette and I, while searching through the fascinating wardrobe there, came across a two-piece suit of dark sand knit wool crepe with interwoven flecks of anchovy colored silk and a huge, fluffy collar of looped wool and silk.

The newest law of Fashion, showing the popularity of high necks, is enforced in the jumpers of fine cream Jersey cloth, with bands, ties and collar-scarves of contrasting colors. Most snug and effective.

Fashions and Foibles

By Shirley Sharon

Waves of smacking leap up and down on the sleeve and at the top of a little frock that tells the world about its bloomers.

The children's dressmakers in Paris make tiny smocked dresses very, very short to show their adorable little bloomers. The young lady who is posing for her picture and rather neglecting her child wears canary yellow crepe de Chine smocked in soft old blue and black. Chambray, fine cotton crepe, cotton pongee, cotton voile, pongee or challis in white are smocked with red, yellow and green. Green and orange are used on tan, orchid, corn color and rose on blue. Prints in a small all-over design make charming little dresses also and do not need the smocking.

Makeup Must Fit Your Personality

"Don't use the same kind of cosmetics that your next-door neighbor uses, just because they look well on her," warns Marie Prevost, the popular Warner actress. "Perhaps your skin requires darker or lighter rouge. Your mouth may be a trifle too large or too small for the vivid lipstick she affects.

"In cosmetics, above everything else," says this Warner player, who is working in "Bobbed Hair," where she has occasion to try out the different kinds of make-up, "take care to suit your face and your personality.

"The make-up you use should be as individual as the shape of your nose. Experiment with the various rouges and face powders until you achieve an effect especially becoming to you," advises Miss Prevost.

The Broken Thread

By WILLIAM LE QUEUX

(Author of "The House of Whispers," "The Day of Temptation," Etc.)

CHAPTER XXV

Sir Raife Remington, Baronet and Burglar

The joy day of Versailles and all the phantom pleasures had passed. There was only one thing which confronted the gang. It was a momentous occasion. Raife had sold his soul, his very being, and a crime was to be committed. He was to take the leading part in the burglary in the Avenue des Champs Elysees. They were sitting in the flat in the Rue Lafayette. Gilda was at the piano. Raife was reading some English newspapers. Maisano was present and Denoir occupied a chair. Tomorrow was the day, or rather the night, that had been decided upon for the great event. Tomorrow Raife was to descend to the depths of complete crime. It was idiotic. There was no reason for this thing; but he was impelled by a super-dominant fate, which led him to a doom that he could not avoid. They talked together and discussed all the details of the affaire. Gilda left the piano and sat silently in a chair. Her mind was not her own. Simply obedient to the will of Maisano, she sat there and looked at Raife, the one person who could carry her from the throes of her present situation. Raife was inert. He, in turn, was influenced by the environment that had dragged him down from a high position to that of a common criminal. Maisano smiled with the confidence of a practised criminal. He and Denoir had made their compact, which Raife had overheard at the Doctor's rooms in the Rue Malmaison. With the completeness that accompanied all his plans Raife Remington's sacrifice was assured. A paragraph in the newspaper arrested his attention. It read:

"The mysterious disappearance of Sir Raife Remington, Bart., about a year ago has led to curious complications. It will be remembered that his hat and coat were found on the cliffs at Cromer. In a pocket was a letter, apparently written by the demented man, from which it was inferred that Sir Raife Remington had committed suicide. A paragraph appeared in the Paris edition of The New York Herald some time ago to the effect that Sir Raife had left Marseilles for the United States. Detective Inspector Herrion ascertained that this paragraph had been inserted by a member of a gang of Continental thieves, and there seems little doubt that either the baronet has committed suicide, or been made away with. His estates are extensive, and there are complications as to the disposition of affairs. It is rumored that Aldborough Park, which has been the residence of the Remingtons—or Reymingtounes—since the days of the Tudors, will be placed on the market for sale, as the ancient baronetage becomes extinct with the death of Sir Raife Remington."

This paragraph brought consternation to his mind, and he realised, for a while, the madness of his present actions. Maisano's presence was sufficient to alter the trend of his mind, and the result was a volte face. He crossed the room, and taking a number of liqueur glasses and a decanter from a sideboard, he filled the glasses. Having handed one to each person, he drank in a debonair manner. "Success to the crime to be committed!"

Maisano smiled, Denoir sneered, and Gilda winced.

There were four rings of an electric bell in the room in which they sat. They were sudden, sharp, and in rapid succession. The three men leapt to their feet and made for the extra exit of the flat, which gave no indication from the outside as to the nature of the door.

This danger signal had been well-planned by Maisano for emergencies, and all details of their actions had been rehearsed. Gilda was left alone and, in the briefest while, she transformed from a beautiful, smartly-clad girl into an aged old crony, wearing the blue cotton frock and white apron of female servitude. She had barely completed the transformation when the outside bell rang three times. Snatching up a broom she went to the door.

Lesige was there, breathless. In hurried accents he gasped: "Are they here, or have they gone? That fellow Herrion, the English detective, of Scotland Yard, has chased me. Let me get through and away quickly. Mam-selle, I hope I have not frightened you, but it is serious."

Gilda had closed the door quickly, and accompanied Lesigne to the second exit. As he went out, leaving Gilda alone again "to face the music," he bowed gracefully, and, with his hand on his heart, whispered.

"Mam'selle Your disguise is perfect. Even so you still look beautiful—charmante!"

'Twas thus that Gilda fascinated all whom she met. Alone in the flat, and with danger threatened and imminent, she remained cool. Quickly she disturbed the furniture, and made it evident that she was sweeping and dusting the room. Within a minute there was a ring of the bell. It was the ring she had expected and prepared for. The "old crony" opened the door and was confronted by Detective Inspector Herrion and another man. The other man announced brusquely:

"I am an agent of poice. You have a man here—a man named Lesigne. Never mind what his other names are. I must enter. Where is he? Tell me at once, or it will be the worse for you. Yes, understand me, for you!"

Gilda trembled with well simulated apprehension, stammering, "Mais non, Monsieur. There is no one here, sir. This is the flat, the apartment of Monsieur Vachelle. I am alone cleaning things up. But enter, sir, and you shall see."

The two police officers entered, and searched each room. In the front room Herrion noticed the four liqueur glasses and the decanter of cognac. Approaching the table on which they stood, he held one of the glasses in his hand and remarked.

"So, so! Monsieur Vachelle has had company. Who has been visiting Monsieur Vachelle? Tell me."

Gilda protested. "Indeed, sir, I do not know. Monsieur Vachelle left early this morning. I think he has gone to the country, but I do not know for certain. Why should he tell me? I am only here to clean and tidy his rooms. Monsieur is a gentleman. I am only a servant."

Herrion stared hard at her, saying, "So Monsieur Vachelle is a gentleman is he, and you are only a servant."

Gilda felt the force of that penetrating glance and stooped to dust a chair. The two police officers were eventually satisfied that Lesigne was not there, and as for Monsieur Vachelle, they knew nothing of him, good or evil. So they departed. When they were gone Gilda collapsed and wept bitterly.

The injured girls, three prominent Toronto University co-eds, are shown above. At the left is Miss Blanche Burton, daughter of Mr. C. L. Burton, vice-president and general manager of the Robert Simpson Company, Limited; at the upper right is her sister, Dorothy, who was hurled out of the car and but slightly injured; and at the lower right is Miss Jean Arnold, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ernest F. Arnold. The girls are all members of the Alpha Gamma Delta Sorority, and had been attending the annual convention of the sorority in Seattle, returning by way of Victoria.

Coats for Summer Winds

Georgette Coats Add New Touch to Summer Frocks, Combining Smart Lines With Usefulness

"It's too warm to wear that sport coat," you protest with petulant intolerance at the suggestion that you take some kind of a wrap in case the sun turns a fickle shoulder at the heavens and the chilly winds pierce the short, sleeveless silk frock you're wearing.

It's too warm to carry a coat—still it's mighty comfortable to slip into when the evening comes, isn't it?

Summer brings the same problem every year, but this season Providence has been kind to us and decreed the flannel and Georgette coats that have found such favor throughout the country.

The straight-line flannel coat in yellow, white or green is a charming attribute to any Summer costume, and at the same time solves the problem of the Summer wrap. It is sporty, comfortable during the day, and decidedly useful when the wind blows or the Summer shower makes its appearance.

The Georgette coat is daintier in appearance and consequently makes a more appropriate wrap for afternoon wear.

Miss Miller wears a black Georgette wrap of this kind in "Rose of the World," the picture she is at present working on for Warner Bros. Summer ermine borders the wide sleeves and the hem, while a shawl collar of the Georgette is thrown gracefully around the neck.

"For those planning to spend all day going from the courts to tea and then on to dinner at some inn, there is nothing more delightful than either of these midsummer coats, which combine smart, fashionable lines with usefulness," maintains Patsy Ruth Miller, who uses them both during her work in "Rose of the World."

The white or pastel colored flannel coats are particularly fetching with little felt, close-fitting hats of matching color. Black and blue are the more popular colors for the Georgette wrap, which carries a border of taffeta petals or Summer furs on sleeves and hem.

Chest 200 Years Old Guards Furs From Orient

Out of the mystic Orient recently came a camphor wood chest, said to be 200 years old, filled with a season's catch of Siberian furs, consigned to a Tacoma trader. The chest is leather bound and of Manchurian manufacture, an antique of the early days of fur trading in the Behring Sea and Arctic. The box, despite its age, retains the brilliant red color and the pungent odor of camphor.

Such chests were used by fur traders of the last century to preserve the skins from moths and vermin. John W. Kelly is the owner of the relic.

Fashion Fancies

By Marie Belmont

The new order for Fall is for fullness at the back, and the advance model above follows the new whim of fashion.

The material is crepe back satin in a lovely soft tan. The trimming is of brown silk braid. The dress is perfectly straight in front, all the fullness being at the back.

The scarf collar carries a decorative motif of applied squares of georgette in yellow, brown and blue.

Most Lavish Season Since War Comes to End in London

The social season now nearing its close has been the most strenuous since 1913. Although old England complains daily of the dolorous plight of its trade and that unemployment gets worse instead of better each week, money has been lavished upon entertainments in Mayfair, Ascot, Goodwood, and other society places upon a sumptuous scale not rivaled even in the days when there was no doubt about London being the centre of the world's wealth.

Some of the entertainments this season have been paid for by a little group of American hostesses who have set up establishments in Mayfair seeking new worlds to conquer. Another factor making the 1925 season memorable has been the unusually large number of wealthy Britons with debutante daughters. These debs and the dowagers who entertain them got little rest until the season closed with the garden party at Buckingham Palace, to which 6,000 persons had invitations.

When they have finished with this final social duty to their subjects and several score of alien guests, King George and Queen Mary will take their vacation.

Where, wonder the British as they gaze on the Summer's increasing stream of American tourists, are the horned-rimmed glasses of yesteryear? On last Fourth of July, when many Americans then in London attended the reception at the embassy, almost half of them wore heavy horn-rimmed glasses, but when Ambassador Houghton threw open Crewe House to his countrymen only a few of those wearing glasses had the heavy-rimmed kind.

The only explanation offered is that even tourists are getting wise to the ways of the world and have found it cheaper when touring in Europe to wear pince-nez or other old forms of glasses and thus keep their nationality and supposed wealth from being so manifest.

AN INTERESTING FACT

An excess of vapor from the breather or vent in the crank case is not always an indication of leaky piston rings. Excess oil pressure will cause vapor at high speeds. Five pounds pressure at idling speed and about twenty pounds at thirty miles per hour or over will give sufficient lubrication and eliminate vapor at high speeds.

Channel Swim Developing Into International Contest

Gertrude Ederle and Lillian Harrison Plan Their Start for Next Monday Morning—Classic Crossing Has Been Done Only Four Times in History

By CAPTAIN ALEC RUTHERFORD
(Copyright, 1925, by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

CAPE GRIS NEZ, France, July 30.—Miss Ederle's cross-channel swim, scheduled for Monday morning, has developed into an international race, with two contenders both women.

Miss Lillian Harrison, the Argentine champion, who failed in a similar effort three weeks ago, announced today that she will renew her attempt on Monday. Starting from a point 400 yards east of the spot selected for Miss Ederle's take-off, if conditions are favorable, Miss Harrison will leave the beach at 8.16 Monday morning, and Miss Ederle at 8:40. Starting times are made by careful calculations of current conditions and they are different because the strategy of the contenders will be radically different. Miss Ederle, during the first two hours of ebb tide, will try to make three miles straight out toward midchannel.

Meanwhile, Miss Harrison will swim westward down the coast with the tide, afterward shooting across on the flood tide outside the Goodwin Sands. Miss Ederle, on the other hand, hopes by fast swimming to make a course inside the Goodwin Sands.

If the events proceed according to plans, the courses of the two swimmers will cross near the start and again in midchannel, where they will be abreast and will together make the critical struggle for a position favorable to landing on the Channel coast.

There is keen interest between the two rival trainers who are both veterans of many cross-Channel attempts. Wolfe, Miss Ederle's trainer, was himself a fast swimmer, and had laid his plans for Monday's race on the basis of using maximum speed at several points. Burgess, Miss Harrison's trainer, is an advocate of a slower pace.

Never Done by Woman

CAPE GRIS NEZ, France, July 30.—The eyes of sport fans in three continents—Europe, North America and South America—will be focused on old Cape Gray Nose, here on the northern coast of France, where Miss Gertrude Ederle, the young American swimmer, will try for the world's "swimming classic," the Cross-Channel swim.

Never yet has this feat been performed by a woman, although scores have tried it.

Only four times has it been done by men, and these four men represented three continents. The first crossing was made in 1875 by Captain Mathew Webb, an Englishman; the second was in 1911, by Thomas W. Burgess, an Englishman naturalized in France; the third and fourth were in 1923—Henry Sullivan, of Lowell, Mass., and Sebastian Tiraboschi, and Argentinian of Italian descent.

Successful Attempts

Webb's feat, which is commemorated by an impressive stone monument at Dover, was accomplished on his second attempt. He swam a zigzag course, covering 32 miles in all, and his time was 21 hours 45 minutes. He swam from England to France. Webb, a few years later, lost his life while attempting to swim the Niagara Rapids.

Burgess only succeeded after thirteen unsuccessful attempts. His time was 22 hours 30 minutes, and the distance was 42 miles, owing to his very irregular course. He also swam from England to France. He was favored with a water temperature of 56 degrees, the highest in a decade, but he was stung 100 times by jellyfish on his way across and several times narrowly escaped collapse from seasickness. Burgess is now at Cape Gris Nez as coach for Miss Lillian Harrison, the Buenos Aires swimmer.

Sullivan and Tiraboschi conquered the Channel on dates only a week apart, in August, 1923. Sullivan's time was 27 hours 45 minutes, and his distance was 56 miles. It was his seventh attempt in ten years of persistent effort. He lost 20 pounds of weight during his swim. Tiraboschi, the South American idol, followed a week later in a whirlwind effort which conquered the Channel in the amazing time of 16 hours 33 minutes. Tiraboschi had spent $25,000 in two previous attempts. He swam from France to England, and Miss Ederle will follow exactly the same course in her attempt.

Wolfe hopes to plan things so carefully that Miss Ederle will catch a direct tide in midchannel, near Ridge Sands; thence the course will be set to catch a flood tide back of Goodwin Sands, swimming the last few miles in slack water onto the Dover Beach below Shakespeare Cliffs. If slack water is not encountered, there is a possibility of the swim extending several extra hours.

Never Succeeded

Miss Ederle is undoubtedly fortunate in having the services of Jabez Wolfe. He knows more about Channel swimming than any other living man, having himself made more than twenty gallant but unsuccessful attempts. Although he never had the luck to win success, his experiences have taught him practically everything there is to know about the difficulties and dangers which make for failure, as well as the factors, tangible and intangible, that are essential to success.

In his training programme, Wolfe's plan is to conserve the physical resources of the girl champion, and to assist her in developing a style appropriate to the tremendous ordeal before her. He is a believer in steady training, gradually increasing in severity, with special attention to the time practice. He has been studying Miss Ederle's racing stroke, reducing it gradually to his standard of twenty-four per minute, and similarly reducing her "kick." While this means a slight loss in pace, it leaves plenty of reserve for the spurts which are necessary in order to catch the most favorable tides.

Feeding Arrangements

The feeding arrangements for the final effort are all completed. Her menu during the swim will consist principally of beef, tea, grapes and chocolate. Taking food during a swim is a new experience for Miss Ederle, but it is necessary in the cross-Channel effort.

As a means of counteracting the effect of the cold and the long enervating soakage in sea water, a special preparation of a greasy substance will cover Miss Ederle's entire body, remaining on her body throughout the whole swim. For the protection of her eyes against the salt water, she will wear specially fitted goggles stuck to her face in a linen case.

There are two or three other obstacles which she is likely to encounter during her swim, but against which no preparation can be made. If she encounters bad tides, she must fight them to prevent being carried off her course. Seasickness in the water has defeated several Channel swimmers, while stings from jellyfish are another thing which can merely be endured. Cramps from the coldness of the water are not infrequent.

The temperature of the Channel water now averages 62 degrees, or two degrees colder than that encountered by Webb and Sullivan in their cross-Channel swims.

Carrick Eliminated

CHICAGO, July 30.—Fred S. Lyon, 15-year-old star from Pontiac, Ills., today defeated Donald Carrick, of Toronto, junior champion, in the third round of the Western junior golf championship.

One of the British newspaper experts informs his public, "Miss Ederle is a pretty girl, strongly built, with powerful shoulders and legs. Her swimming prowess began when she was twelve years old. Today she holds more world's records than any woman in history."

Richards Plays James Anderson In Tennis Final

Seabright Tennis Ending in International Competition in Both Singles—Helen Wills to Play Miss Ryan

SEABRIGHT, N.J., July 30—Finals in the men's and women's singles in the Seabright Bowl invitation tennis tournament will have an international flavor as a result of today's semi-finals, Vincent Richards, of Yonkers, N.Y., worked his way into the men's finals by defeating R. N. Williams II, of Philadelphia, 7-5, 6-4, while James Anderson, singles champion of Australia, won his way into the final bracket by defeating Cranston Holman, Leland Stanford University star, 7-9, 6-1, 8-4.

Miss Helen Wills, of Berkeley, Cal., will meet Miss Elizabeth Ryan, of England, in the women's final. Miss Wills today disposed of her leading American rival, Mrs. Molla B. Mallory, of New York, 6-1, 6-0.

Miss Ryan broke into the finals by defeating Miss Mary K. Browne, Santa Monica, 4-5, 6-2, 6-4. In the women's doubles Miss H. Wills and Miss Mary K. Browne won their semi-final match and will meet Miss E. Gass and Miss E. Ryan in the finals Saturday.

Mixed Doubles

John B. Hawkes, of the Australian Davis Cup team, and Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup, of Wilmington, Del., triumphed today over Jack Wright, of Canada, and Miss Penelope Anderson, of Richmond, Va., 6-1, 8-1, in the second round of the mixed doubles of the Seabright invitation tennis tournament.

Coming to Victoria

Chick Evans, of Chicago, is the greatest gallery drawer of all golfers in the world perhaps. Even when the genial Chick is playing poorly, which is seldom, and is losing his match, large galleries follow him with the utmost devotion. This is due to his sunny and friendly attitude to the thousands of friends he has thus created. In fact, some of his supporters have asserted that Evans might handily have won more titles on the links if he had concentrated more on his game and not diffused his cordiality so prodigally. However, that is his nature, and probably he would play less skillfully if he tightened his heart against his normal tendency.

Be that as it may, Chick has won glory enough for anyone, for he is the only man who ever won the U. S. open and amateur titles in the same year, and in taking the open crown he set a world's record of 286, which no one has been able to surpass or even tie. Evans won the national amateur title twice and was runner-up on at least two other occasions. He took the Western amateur championship eight times, including five wins in a row. He also won the Western open crown when he was in his teens.

Chick has been medalist in numerous big events and probably holds more course records than any other golfer. He is a stylist to perfection and knows every shot possible in golf. He has never been able in two or three attempts to win any foreign title, except the championship of France, but he won plaudits in Great Britain for his splendid style and his good sportsmanship.

Starting as caddy while a puny boy with far from a rugged physique, Chick won the Western amateur title when only 18 years' old, another record to his credit, for no other person so young has taken a major championship. Before he was 30 years' old he had won so many cups and titles and had such broad experience that he filled a book of large proportions with his experiences. In addition to this volume, he has written thousands of articles for magazines and newspapers on the technique and the glories of golf and has probably done more than any other one man in furthering the game.

In the seventeenth century individuals took their own silver with them when invited to dine away from home.

Four C's Bicycle Riders to Compete At Mainland Sports

At the meeting of the Four C's Bicycle Club, held last night at the Y.M.C.A., it was decided to send four members to compete in the races, which will be held in connection with the Caledonia sports in Vancouver on Saturday, for the British Columbia championship.

Charlie Staples, Peden and McPhee, three of the best riders on the Pacific Coast, were the unanimous choice of the meeting to represent this city, while another will be chosen today.

Cloudbank Wins Goodwood Cup

James White's Four-Year-Old Once More Shows His Mettle Over a Distance

GOODWOOD, Eng., July 30.—James White's Cloudbank won the Goodwood Cup race for £1,000, run here today. Cloudbank is by Nimbus, out of Berengere.

Aga Khan's Caprier, 20 to 1 against, was second, and Sir Abe Bailey's Son of Spring, 8 to 1 against, third. Six ran. Cloudbank won by three-quarters of a length and a half-length separated Caprier and Son of Spring.

The win of Cloudbank was more remarkable, inasmuch as Cloudbank nearly captured the Goodwood Plate, a long distance handicap, yesterday, finishing second to Diapason. Cloudbank, a four-year-old colt by Nimbus-berengere, has also won the Queen's Prize at Kempton this Spring.

The Goodwood Cup, established in 1812, is one of the turf's most important long distance flat races and the feature of the third day of the "Glorious Goodwood" meeting, which concludes tomorrow. The cup is a race of two miles five furlongs, and carries a value of £1,200.

Besides Cloudbank, Caprier and Son of Spring, the following started: Lord Rosebery's Plack, Aga Khan's Charley's Mount and A. Cox's Alness.

Starting slowly, Caprier led from Alness, Plack and Charley's Mount, with Cloudbank and Son of Spring in the rear. Six furlongs from home Plack, one of the outstanding stayers, fell. Caprier continued in the lead from Alness, with the heavily-backed favorite, Charley's Mount, being hard ridden. A quarter mile from the finish Cloudbank went to the front and won a great race. The White colt's time for the two miles five furlongs was 5 minutes 4 4-5 seconds.

Charley's Mount was the winner last year of the Cesarewitch Stakes, one of the turf's outstanding long distance handicaps. Plack last year won the One Thousand Guineas, one of the five great three-year-old classics.

Spencers and Sidney Will Clash Tonight

Fast Ball Game Expected When Two Teams Meet at Royal Athletic Park

One of the best Commercial League ball games of the season should be seen tonight when Spencer's and Sidney clash at the Royal Athletic Park. At present the millmen and Tillicums are occupying the first berth, with Spencers one game behind for second honors. A win tonight for the department store boys will make a three-cornered tie, while a victory for Sidney will give them a lead which will keep them well in the running for the pennant. The game is scheduled to start at 6:30 sharp.

The Sidney crew is taking no chances in losing tonight's game, and will bring along one of the strongest teams of the year. At the last meeting of the two teams the department store boys reversed the decision which they were handed during their visit to the millmen's stronghold, and they are going out to repeat the performance. A record crowd is expected to be on hand to watch the teams in action.

Saturday Cricket Teams

The following cricket teams for Saturday's matches were announced last night:

Incogs (vs. Victoria at Jubilee Hospital)—F. A. Sparks (captain), J. Wenman, R. Wenman, G. Wenman, G. H. Kinch, H. H. Allen, H. F. Hewitt, A. G. Tracy, F. C. Sexley, F. Lewin and E. Grubb.

Five C's (vs. Albions at Cranmore Road)—F. C. Payne (captain), W. M. Sufton, H. Edwards, C. F. Comley, W. B. Bredin, Edan Quainton, Eric Quainton, E. Butterworth, A. Lea, J. Collet and A. Attwell; umpire, R. H. Barker; scorer, J. A. Longfield.

Esquimalt Fall Before Sidney In Fast Match

Intermediate Lacrosse Game Ends in Score of 5 to 1 in Favor of Millmen—To Affiliate With B.C.A.L.A.

To Arrange for Play-Offs

Showing remarkable teamwork and speed in the last two quarters, Sidney surprised the fast-stepping Esquimalt intermediate lacrosse team last night, at the Canteen Grounds, and won their game by a score of five to one. One of the largest crowds of the season was on hand for the game, and plenty of neat stickhandling and combination work was seen.

For the first two quarters Esquimalt was in the lead by an odd goal, but after that Sidney showed the effects of their training and coaching, and ran in five goals, while they held the Esquimalt twelve scoreless.

Sweeney opened the scoring about five minutes after the first quarter got under way, and for a time it looked as if they would be easy winners. J. Crossley, the Sidney goalie, was tested from all angles with fast shots from all distances, but proved to be right there and let only one go by. In the second quarter, Esquimalt again was the aggressor, but the work of the millmen's defence, and Crossley in goal, proved to be a stonewall to get by, and no goals were registered.

Sidney Takes Lead

About three minutes after the third quarter, Davis, on a pretty piece of work by the Sidney home men, tied the score with a shot from close quarters. Just before the period ended the same player put his team in the lead when he sagged the hemp behind Banks with a fast shot from a difficult angle.

Three more were added in the final quarter, the first coming off the stick of Anderson, from close quarters, while the other two fell to the lot of Lionel Crossley, who scored with two beautiful backhand shots. Joe Hancock refereed to the satisfaction of all, and the teams were as follows:

Sidney—J. Crossley, Hill, Gilman, A. Nunn, H. Nunn, Davis, Ward, B. Bowcott, Clanton, Anderson, L. Crossley, Lind and David.

Esquimalt—Banks, Sweeney, DeCosta, Fooks, Noel, Blair, Basso, Burnett, Scafe, Wagland, Plater and Nicol.

Summary—First quarter, Sweeney, 5.10; second quarter, none; third quarter, Davis, 3.20; Davis, 10.15; fourth quarter, Anderson, 2.50; L. Crossley, 8.40; L. Crossley, 14.50. No penalties.

The Meeting

At the meeting of the Lacrosse Association, held following the game, Mr. Leonard Tait, president of the league, was unanimously elected as delegate to attend the British Columbia Amateur Lacrosse Association's meeting in Vancouver early next month.

The association decided to affiliate with the B.C.A.L.A., of Vancouver, and arrangements for home and home games between the Senior "B" and Intermediate teams on the Mainland will be asked for this city.

Following the game between Sidney and the Garrison on Saturday night, at Work Point Barracks, a meeting of the executive of the league will be held, when the final games of the schedule will be drawn up.

STANLEY COVELESKIE

The pitching of Stanley Coveleskie is the sensation of the big leagues this year, and is very much responsible for Washington's standing. Coveleskie went to the Senators when Cleveland thought he was through as a twirler, but lstead he is pulling the most ramarkable come-back on record. Coveleskie learned the game at Shamokin, Pa.

Shipyarders Going Over To Defend Soccer Title

SEATTLE, July 30.—Todd's shipyard soccer team, which last year won the annual five-a-side competition in Vancouver, B.C., will leave Friday for Vancouver to defend the trophy. The shipbuilders were the first team to win the cup.

Sarazen Wins Feature

YONKERS, N.Y., July 30.—Earle Sande rode Sarazen to victory in the Fleetwing Handicap, $3,000 added, which was the closing feature of the Empire City track today. Lucky Play was second, and Worthmore third. Sarazen's time for the six furlongs event was 1:08 2-5.

Leo Diegel Takes the Lead In Canadian Open Tourney

Present Titleholder Shoots Two Better Than Par for First Eighteen Holes at Lambton Course—A. Kay and Walter Hagen Each Two Strokes Behind

TORONTO, July 30.—Leo Diegel, who won the Canadian open championship at Montreal last year, is out to equal the record of D. Edgar, by winning the title two years in succession, and today, at Lambton, in the first eighteen holes of the seventy-two-hole test, he secured a lead of two strokes on his nearest rivals, A. Kay, of Lambton, and Walter Hagen, by shooting a sixty-nine, two better than par, and equalling the competitive record for the course set by Kay.

All three leaders played par or better on 14 of the holes, each taking an extra stroke on four holes, and Diegel owes his lead to the fact that he had six birdies on his round to four by each of the others.

Some Withdrawals

There were a number of withdrawals, the most prominent being those of Tommy Armour, and Johnny Farrell. However, post entries kept the number of competitors close to the 150 mark. Of these a number either picked up or decided not to turn in their card, with the result that 140 are eligible to play in the second round. All those who finish not more than 20 strokes behind the leader tomorrow night will qualify to play in the third and fourth rounds Saturday. Should Diegel turn in another score around 70 tomorrow the congestion on the final day will be considerably reduced.

Hillcrests Play Garrison Tonight

Crucial Game in Indoor Baseball League Series at Work Point —Former Is Favorite

"Play Ball!" At the call of these words from Bob Whyte tonight at the Canteen Grounds the Garrison and the Hillcrests indoor baseball nines will clash in the semi-final for the Clearihue Challenge Cup, emblematic of the indoor baseball championship of the city. These teams are considered by the followers of the newly-formed ball league to be real top-notchers, and tonight's game should be a thriller. The series stands even, with each team credited with a win and a loss, although the game won by the Hillmen was protested by the Garrison management. If the soldier nine win tonight there will be no need to deal with the protest as they will have won two games, but in the event of the Hillmen copping the bacon the protest will also be dealt with by a special meeting of the Indoor Baseball League.

Major Hughes, manager of the crack Garrison team, has not announced his lineup, but it is expected that Major Cobbett will do the heaving, with the manager at the receiving end, and the remaining personnel of the team the same as that of last week. Dr. Poynts, the Hillcrests' star twirler, will be on the mound for last year's champions, while the old reliable Alex. Potts will handle the pill at the catcher's end. The remainder of the team will be the same as that which handed the Tommies a defeat last week at Work Point Barracks.

Hillcrests Favorites

The Hillcrests, present holders of the city championship, are the favorites for tonight's game, but they will have no easy task in lowering the colors of their opponents. The Tommies are a formidable aggregation of ball players, and behind the pitching of Major Cobbett they can play good ball. The umpires for tonight's game will be Bob Whyte and Cyril Turner. Neither of these men need any introduction to the followers of the Indoor Baseball League, as it will be remembered that Bob is a member of the league-leading Y.M.C.A., while Cyril Turner was playing manager of Prior's nine last season. With two such capable men in charge the followers of the Indoor Baseball League should witness one of the best games of the season.

Foul Bay Plays

The Foul Bay nine, present leaders of the "B" section of the second half of the schedule will be guests of the Garrison "A" at Work Point. This game will have quite a bearing on the championship of this section and a hard tussle is expected. In their last encounter the youngsters defeated the soldiers by the odd run, and, in endeavoring to hold on to the leadership, the boys will be at full strength tonight. Victory for the Foul Bay nine will give them the championship of the "B" section of the league. The game is called for 8:30 o'clock.

Davenport Soccer Team Defeats Reliables in Final for Hunt Cup

NANAIMO, July 30.—The Davenport soccer team defeated the Reliables last evening by a three to one score in the final for the Hunt Cup in the junior football series. The Davenports piled up the three goals in the first half, while the Reliables secured their lone counter in the second period. The game was witnessed by one of the largest crowds that has attended a junior match in the city. The play, from a football standpoint, was loose, and lacking in science. The boys all played hard, but their team work was lacking, and but little combination work was developed by either side.

Sportive Punches

By the "Old 'Un"

Here's a little puzzle for the Fishery Protection officers and their official law interpreters to solve:

* * * * * * *

How many lines is a man fishing with if he uses one main line, so to speak, with half-a-dozen or so branches each armed with a spoon or other bait to attract a salmon?

* * * * * * *

And is a wire spreader or other device enabling a man to fish with a number of baits on one main line a line within the meaning of the act?

* * * * * * *

Some of the aforementioned gentlemen might profitably spend some of their spare time, if they have any, watching the methods of certain salmon fishermen in the Saanich Inlet and deliberating the solution of the above puzzle and its corollary, whether this kind of fishing is or is not fishing with more than one line.

* * * * * * *

And if not, whether it is or is not a violation of the meaning of the law if not the letter of the same. And if only the meaning, which, of course, does not count in a court of law unless it is also the latter, perhaps a move might be made to alter the wording of the law in order to prevent what is really no more and no less than poaching methods.

* * * * * * *

"One man one line" is evidently not sufficient to prevent unsportsmanlike methods in waters supposedly reserved for sportsmen. It ought to be "one man, one line, one bait and not more than so many salmon in one day."

* * * * * * *

If the Government treats the presumed sportsman so kindly as to reserve for him certain waters and keep commercial fishermen sailing under true commercial colors out of them, it is a mean return to resort to devices to defeat regulations made for his own good and play unfair also to the honest-to-goodness commercial fishermen by selling the catch sub rosa.

* * * * * * *

There are three classes of fishermen—fisharman who fish for a living, fisharmen who fish for sport, and fish-hogs.

* * * * * * *

And the CONNAUGHT CUP goes back East.

* * * * * * *

NANAIMO made a gallant fight of it, and did well to go as far as they did. Ulster United must have a fine team to beat our up-Islanders, and the Old 'Un offers them his congratulations on their success against British Columbia's best.

* * * * * * *

The Editor of Golfers' Magazine, busily engaged just now in sending out columns of "advance stuff" anent the coming golf excursion "de luxe," drops us a line to ask: "How would you like to be able to drive 50 golf balls on a 335-yard hole and be able to send 40 of them onto or across the green?"

* * * * * * *

And he goes on to say that such a man is among the select 300 on board the special trains, also "de luxe," touring the Northwest. The gentleman is known as "Bust'em Bill Bucher, of Kansas City, who can not only drive an unbelievably long ball, but can score well, if he doesn't get into difficulties.

* * * * * * *

We have something in common with Bust'em Bill after all. We can score well if we don't get into difficulties. At least, we believe we should.

Claim World Record In Seattle Swimming

Laufer Beats Marks for 200 Yards Breaststroke—Weismuller Takes Half-Mile

SEATTLE, July 30.—Walter Laufer, of the Y. M. C. A. of Cincinnati, set a world record in the 200-yard backstroke here today in the national and Northwest swimming championships of the Amateur Athletic Union which opened yesterday and will close Saturday.

Johnny Weismuller, Chicago, announced as the champion of all champions, gained the title in the 880 national free style, but his time was 16.4 seconds slower than the world record, 10:43.6, held by Arne Borg, Sweden. Borg, who lost the title, was not in the race. Weismuller won by 50 yards, with Harry Glancy, Cincinnati, second, and Carl B. Stevenson, Stanford University, third.

In points the end of the second day found the Illinois Athletic Club of Chicago remaining in the lead with 16. Next in order to the end of the list were Young Men's Christian Association, Cincinnati, 11; Roman Pool, Miami, Florida, 5; Stanford, 4; and Swimming Club, Uniontown, Pa., and the Chicago Athletic Association, 3 each; and Olympic Club, San Francisco; Griffin Natatorium, Chicago, and Crystal Pool, Seattle, 1 each.

In the Pacific Northwest meet the order was: Crystal Pool, Seattle, 27; Multnomah Athletic Club, Portland, Ore., 24; Young Women's Christian Association, Spokane, 9; Young Men's Christian Association, Spokane, and Natatorium, Walla Walla, 5; and Walla Walla unattached, 3.

A Pacific Northwest record fell when Coral Moran, of Spokane, won the women's 100-yard backstroke in 1:24.6. The old mark was 1:33, made by Hester Eastman, Seattle, at Tacoma in 1922. Laufer's mark was 2:50. No record had been listed previously.

Murray Hulbert, of New York City, president of the A. A. U. here in charge of the meets, announced that owing to a strong breeze almost straight of the course and blowing with the swimmers in the races in which record attainments were recorded, the claims would be scrutinized by the records committee of his organization.

Taking all marks at their face value a total of five records were set in the two days. One of these records is world, one American and three Pacific Northwest.

DOMINION THEATRE Hundreds of feathered and furred actors appear in "The Unholy Three," a Crook drama directed by Tod Browning and produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and now showing at the Dominion Theatre. They do not get screen credit but they play an important role in this melodrama because much of the story concerns a bird and animal store run as a cover-up by a trio of crooks. One of the humorous touches of this film is the sale of non-talking parrots by Lon Chaney, who plays the role of a ventriloquist. With his assistance they all become talking birds until they are sold, at which time they immediately relapse into a state of complete silence.

CAPITOL THEATRE "The Spaniard," a Paramount picture, produced by Raoul Walsh, director of "The Thief of Bagdad," is now showing at the Capitol Theatre. Ricardo Cortez, Jetta Goudal and Noah Beery are featured in the picture, written from the novel of the same name by Juanita Savage. "The Spaniard" is the story of a bullfighter, the idol of Spain. He is in reality a member of one of his country's foremost families. In London he gets the reputation of being quite a lady-killer. While there he meets Miss Goudal, playing the English society girl, Dolores Annesley, who also has quite a line of broken hearts to her credit. It's a case of Greek meeting Greek.

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE Emilie Johnson who is as familiar with the ways of the sea as she is with her home fireside, has prepared a remarkable story, "The Sea Lion," for Hobart Bosworth, and which is now showing at the Playhouse Theatre. The plot breathes the sternness of the Arctic, exhales the perspiration of battling numbers and throbs with the tender love of father and daughter. Unusual scenic effects taken more than a hundred miles from shore, realistic scenes on board the whaling schooner and thrilling climaxes provide the picture with plenty of features. The cast supporting the star consists of Bessie Love, Emory Johnson, Carol Holloway, Florence Carpenter, Charles Clary, Jack Curtis, Richard Morris and J. Gordon Russell.

COLISEUM THEATRE May Edginton's latest short story, "Judgment," has been picturized by Frank Lloyd and featuring Antonio Moreno, Patsy Ruth Miller, Ruth Clifford and David Torrence, will be shown at the Coliseum Theatre all this week under the screen title "Her Husband's Secret." Miss Edginton is the authoress of "Triumph" and "Secrets" and is well known for her finer details of domestic life.

COLUMBIA THEATRE Cowboys, cowgirls, Indians, old-time drivers of horse pulled stages and others possessing vital knowledge of Western habits, customs and sports, to a total number of close to 1,000, to say nothing of outlaw horses. Then, there are big horn steers and such that had a part in the making of Charles Wellington Furlong's novel, "Let 'Er Buck," Universal-Gibson special, which opened yesterday at the Columbia Theatre and proved itself to be one of the most thrilling colorful pictures of Western life ever shown on a screen.

DeMille's Latest "Greatest Production" To Show at Dominion

"The Ten Commandments" probably has more press agents than any picture made, which may explain why capacity audiences greeted it wherever it played last year when it was being shown at $2 admission throughout the world. Almost without exception, priests, rabbis, ministers, teachers and writers who see the picture at once launch a publicity campaign on behalf of Cecil B. DeMille's opus. Such distinguished men as Cardinal Hayes, Rabbi Wise and Bishop Manning have urged parents and teachers to send their children in order to learn the decalogue from the screen. This picture will be shown for the first time in Victoria at popular prices when it is unfolded at the Dominion Theatre.

Ries. The trio consists of Mr. Drury Fryce, violin; Mr. Harold Taylor, violoncello; Mr. Ira Dilworth, piano.

Canadian Railroad Fusion Plan Rapped

Government Should Settle Dispute With G.T. Shareholders First, Says London Paper

LONDON, July 30.—The financial editor of the weekly Truth, discussing the report of the Canadian Senate committee in June advising the merging of the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific railways, says:

"Reading between the lines one becomes suspicious that the scheme is partly or wholly designed to get the Canadian Government out of the horrible mess it has made of the railway business.

C.P.R. Assent Doubted

"It would be interesting to learn the views of the directors of the Canadian Pacific upon the scheme and the shareholders would not be very likely to support the plan unless a full ten per cent on their money were guaranteed. This is being earned now and we do not see why the shareholders should be content with less, even to get the Government out of the hole.

"As to interest, the former holders of Grand Trunk preferred and common stock, and the present shareholders of the Grand Trunk Pacific four per cent debentures and Canadian income debentures, would like very much to know what dividend in the event of the fusion will be guaranteed to them. Even if they are guaranteed eight per cent, they would suffer an annual loss of two per cent and from past experience of the way the Government has treated Grand Trunk stockholders, they might prefer to use ten per cent from the Canadian Pacific to eight per cent from the Government.

G.T.P. Compensation Urged

"It seems that one effect of consolidation of the railway interests such as has been suggested is that it might tend to confuse, or at least obscure the issues wherein these investors are interested.

"Certainly, I think the Government should not accept this particular recommendation of the Senate committee until a complete and satisfactory settlement has been reached upon matters about which we have heard so much, since the Government by refusing to allow an adequate increase in rates compelled the old Grand Trunk to throw up the sponge when, nominally, a capital of £37,000,000 passed out of existence."

Inventor Hopes New Musical Instrument Will Replace Piano

MOSCOW, July 29.—A Russian musician, S. Gliev, has invented a new musical instrument which, he hopes, will replace upright and grand pianos. The instrument, which has an ordinary keyboard, is in the form of a box one yard wide and weighing only eight pounds. The usual strings are replaced by a steel tomb, and the little hammers by tiny pinchers which touch upon the teeth of the combs.

Russian composers and musicians, including Ippolitov-Ivanov and Avranek, who have played the instrument at the Moscow Conservatory of Music, testify that it is capable of replacing existing pianos and that it has a stronger tone and superior intonations to the ordinary pianos. The new instrument has been christened "Piche-tone." It is believed it can be produced at a low enough price to compete successfully with the present bulky old-fashioned pianos.

Seventy-Mile Glacier Found on Mt. Logan, Peak Conquerer Says

VANCOUVER, July 30.—Recounting in brief form the story of the ascent of Mount Logan by the expedition of which he was a member, Col. W. W. Foster, D.S.O., of this city, told members of the Canadian Club here today that the mountain is situated in the midst of a great glacial area.

One glacier, he said, is seventy miles long by fifteen miles wide. The mountain is one hundred miles around and contains many peaks some 8,000 feet high. It was no exaggeration to say, said Col. Foster, that there are hundreds of glaciers in every known form.

Col. Foster gave Capt. McCarthy, leader of the expedition, much credit for his work last Winter in laying supply bases. The expedition was assisted by these up to within eighteen miles of its goal.

Fewer "Doing Time" In Canadian Prisons

OTTAWA, July 30.—The penitentiary population of Canada has varied only a few hundred during the last four years, and the 1924 figure is lower than the two preceding years. In the penitentiaries controlled by the Department of Justice there were: In 1921, 2,150 prisoners; in 1922, 2,440; in 1923, 2,440; and last year there was a drop to 2,225.

Of the total penitentiary population of Canada last year, 692 were in Kingston, 551 were at St. Vincent de Paul, 244 at Dorcester, 199 in Manitoba, 224 in British Columbia, and 293 in Saskatchewan.

COURTENAY, July 30.—Of much more importance than the usual dance or whist drive was the educational event held in the Booth Hall last night under the auspices of the Courtenay Commercial School, the feature of which was the first annual typewriting contest. There were three silver cups and five medals and other awards for the various classes which brought out a goodly number of entries. Results were as follows:

Wild African Pining For Jungle Succumbs in Paris After Nine Days

PARIS, Aug. 1.—One of the saddest tragedies to be recorded recently in the Paris press is of the homesickness of one Konahi, young Negro of the warring tribe of Ouebea, whose exile in a civilization strange to that of Africa led to insanity and death. It was a tragedy not without its dramatic incidents, for a squad of police and the use of tear gas was necessary before Konahi could be subdued, fear that the whites were about to eat him being responsible for his outbreak of violence.

Refused to Be Comforted

The young savage was brought to Paris by M. Maurice Mizraki, a colonial administrator, and almost immediately upon his arrival went to his room and refused to come out. For eight days this lasted, while M. Mizraki regularly took him food and with words of peace tried to explain that the people of Paris were really civilised and had no idea of eating their dark-skinned guest. Konahi refused to be comforted, and on the ninth day expressed his feeling of distrust by throwing a bottle at his master. This was considered a significant move and the police were called in.

Three officers arrived, but before the barricades of the African and a fusillade of bottles and bits of furniture they were forced to retire for reinforcements. Tear gas was brought and Konahi was subjected to a wartime attack. The effect was immediate. Believing himself pursued by fiendish devils, the unhappy savage rushed to the window of his fort and before anything could be done, had thrown himself to the court below. He was immediately taken to a hospital, where it was said that he was only slightly hurt. But Konahi never recovered. His heart broken by homesickness for the quiet of the African jungle, he died the next day.

Prince's Plans Concerning His Future Revived

Talk in London as to His Royal Highness' Likely Programme Is Again in Evidence

May Now Settle Down

What the future travel programme of the Prince of Wales will be after his forthcoming visit to South America is a popular topic for speculation. When he bids farewell to the American continent south of the equator he will have completed his rounds of all the continents of the earth, his trips having taken him to all the great Dominions and larger Colonies of the British Empire as well as to several countries outside the kingdom which he will eventually rule.

Carrying out the extensive programme of trips that was planned for him after the World War, the Prince has spent part of each year since that time away from London. With no more worlds to conquer he will, in the opinion of those who interest themselves in speculating on his future, settle down to seriously prepare himself for the business of being king.

Empire's Great Salesman

The Prince of Wales has been characterized as the greatest salesman that ever represented the British Empire, and his wares, international relations. As such he has been a success in all that the term applies. While South Americans may have an intimate knowledge of the future king, as have the peoples of most countries of the earth, his coming visit will give them an opportunity to get acquainted with the personality that has caused the people of other countries to receive him enthusiastically. Britishers, both royalty and commoners, feel that the Prince has accomplished a great work in creating goodwill and cordial relations between the Empire and the countries he has visited and that his South American visit will be accompanied by the same results.

Aside from the official receptions and social events arranged in his honor there will be a number of things of special interest to the Prince while he is in South America. With somewhat of a reputation as a practical farmer, he is sure to give more than passing notice to the great ranches, the types of their pedigreed stock and the methods of raising them.

Enjoy Favorite Pastime

During his stay in Argentina the Prince will have an opportunity to indulge in one of his favorite pastimes, polo. Teams from that country have made notable records in the United States and Europe, including the last Olympic Games, and with an abundance of fine polo ponies the Prince undoubtedly will engage in the sport as often as his programme will permit.

The homecoming of the Prince will excite Britishers to a greater extent than his return from any previous trip. After his return he will have more time to spend among his own people and consequently there are likely to be more rumors and speculation concerning him than during his former stays in the British capital between trips. These will not influence him, however, as he has shown a strong will and independence of action regarding himself since childhood.

Canadian Peonies Are Popular in London

Above are shown some of the famous Canadian peonies grown in Montreal by Mr. W. Ormiston Roy and shipped to England on a Canadian Pacific vessel in cold storage. The Royal Horticultural Society presented the Banksia Silver Medal to Mr. Roy for these blooms, and they are now on exhibition at the London office of the Canadian Pacific Railway. One young lady is so interested in the flowers that she has dropped her bag, and the other onlookers are too enthralled to have noticed it.

Aged Chief of Stoney Indians Walks Eighty Miles in Two Days

BANFF, July 29.—Eighty-year-old Peter Wisely, chief of the Nordegg branch of the Stoney Indians, dressed and departed from the Sarcee hospital and walked to Morley, a distance of eighty miles, in two days.

He was confined in the hospital for eye treatment, and fearing that the doctors in charge would not permit him to leave in order to bring his tribe through the mountains for the Indian celebration at Banff recently, he took no chances. The chief sneaked away early in the morning and walked across the prairies through the extreme heat. He was practically barefooted when he arrived at the reserve.

Old Peter slept in the open and subsisted on berries and water. He has only one eye left and that doesn't serve him very well, but he Indian instinct carried him across country to his goal.

Wool Expert Sees Firmer Market Sales

Mr. George Jeffrey Left on Aorangi After Investigating Trade Conditions in Europe

Australian Flocks Increase

A stabilization in the price of woollen goods is forecast by Mr. George Jeffrey, of Adelaide, now Australian superintendent of H. Dawson & Company, one of the best known wool exporters in the world, who passed through on Wednesday, homebound on the motorship Aorangi.

Mr. Jeffrey, who is a leading expert on wool, and had charge of tremendous transactions during the War, has just completed an investigation in London, Bradford, and elsewhere in Europe.

A drop in the market followed the February sales, of ten per cent, he says. At that time the general impression was that the bottom had been reached. Subsequent events showed that such was not the case, because prior to the May sales the market had followed the slump, and the London sales showed a further decrease of fully fifteen per cent. The result of such a serious falling off in the market naturally hit the Bradford operators very hard, he adds. The American operators did not get off scot free, and some very heavy losses were registered in the United States.

Price Fluctuations

"Already in England before I left the price of cloth had eased from nine to fifteen pence per yard, as against the same period last year," he remarked, "but in my opinion prices will not go much lower, indeed signs are not wanting that values will harden rather than otherwise. There is no question that the statistical position of wool is extraordinarily strong in the sellers' favor, but what has happened is that the normal consumption has not been taking place, probably due to the exceptionally high prices in relation to supply. Now, however, that prices have eased, the chances are that the consumption will increase, and that the wool market will be stable on a lower level, and cloth will remain somewhat on the level of present prices."

Supply of Sheep

Speaking of the flock situation in Australia, Mr. Jeffrey said, "The flocks have increased of late, as a result of good seasons and there is every indication that the year's clip will be larger than it has been for a long time past. Last year the increased production of the year was about 200,000 bales of 320 pounds each, and this year it is expected that a further increase of 200,000 bales will take place, which would suggest the steadying of market values."

Moose Cow Defending Calf Charges Engine

SASKATOON, July 29.—Infuriated at the "iron monster" which she saw bearing down upon her calf, a moose cow, while crossing a railroad track between Hudson's Bay Junction and Prince Albert, recently, bunted the calf off the track and charged blindly at the oncoming locomotive. The moose was killed instantly. So fierce was the force of the cow's charge that a bar of the cow-catcher was splintered.

Errors About Forests

What Is Conservation?—What It Does Not Mean—"Not Using at All"—The State of Maximum Production—What Forest Reserve Means—Tree Farming and Wood Production

(Note—This is the second of a series of articles issued by the Canadian Forestry Association.)

The increasing interest that people of all sorts are taking in matters connected with the forests has begun to bring the phrase "Forest Conservation" quite commonly into print. Leading articles are devoted to it, and letters to the Editor deal with it. In the same connection "Forest Reserves" are sometimes mentioned, as desirable from the "Conservation" point of view.

But now just what are these things? What is conservation? Many people do not know. Many who do not read the kind of articles alluded to think vaguely that forest conservation means not cutting any trees down—not using the forest at all but letting it stand untouched for some reason unexplained. The same people are very apt to suppose that a forest reserve is a piece of forest into which nobody may go and in which nothing may be done, that is reserved from all ordinary activity again for some unknown, but they suspect discreditable, purpose.

Now these are both mistakes and bad mistakes. And forest conservation is a matter of such vast importance to this nation that it is worth while to say quite clearly that it is, and put the matter right.

"Conservation" really means keeping a forest in state of maximum production. A forest may be looked upon as a wood-mine or tree-farm. A mine will never grow its ores again; it has to be worked out and left. A farm grows its produce year by year and may be more productive after its hundredth cropping than when the process first began. Now this simile of farming gives the clue to forest conservation. Without conservation a forest is a wood-mine; the loggers cut as much as they can as cheaply as possible and then move on to new fields. With conservation, however, it is a tree-farm; fires and other dangers are combatted and the foliage are so managed as to get the best out of the land while always arranging for a new young crop to grow up that will be as good as or better than its predecessor.

To leave a mature forest quite untouched would be as stupid as to leave a ripe cornfield unreaped; in "conserving" a forest therefore we do not wish to preserve trees from being cut that are ready for the axe, but to preserve the forest as a whole from fire, which destroys both the trees and the fertility of the soil; from insects and diseases, which waste both mature and immature stock; from wasteful and unscientific use, which limits the capacity and decreases the productivity of our tree-farm.

"Forest reserve" again gets its meaning in a similar way. It is obvious enough in farm practice that if a crop of wheat is to be grown in a certain field, the wheat must be sown there and left to grow to maturity and that if the farmer turns the field into a baseball ground in the meantime he loses his labor on the wheat. His field, in fact must be kept as a "wheat reserve" (or potato or cabbage reserve) i.e., it must be reserved for the use for which he has destined it until the crop is ripened or rotation completed. It must not be made the sport of continually changing policies. In regulations laying down the policy for reserves, ample provision is made for harvesting the timber, for recreation, and for all legitimate uses. So we see that a forest reserve is not so called because it is reserved from use to lie dormant and contribute nothing to the wealth and progress of the community, but because it is dedicated or reserved for its own best use and highest economic development, from which the community as a whole will ultimately draw the greatest benefit. The forest reserve is only a statement of policy by the administrator as a guide for future management of that area. It is similar to an international treaty.

"Conservation" applied to a tree-farm that is reserved for wood production in this manner will result in the avoidance of waste of all kinds, the longest duration of existing resources and their replacement in due time by young crops of equal or greater value. It will be achieved not by shutting up the forest and doing nothing at all, but by hard work, adequate expenditure and the most careful and scientific methods of management that our knowledge and resources permit us to apply.

Forest conservation is a cause for live men and it is up to every live citizen to see that it is handled with vigor and modern efficiency—and that right soon.

Totem Poles Placed Around Old Armory

Famous Collection Will Prove Additional Attraction to Visiting Tourists

Tourists visiting Victoria will be given another point of interest on the completion of the erection of the famous Massett Indian collection of totem poles around the walls of the Provincial police headquarters, Menzies Street. Mr. Francis Kermode, curator of the Provincial Museum, is directing the placing of the poles, some of which date back hundreds of years, and altogether a round dozen will be erected.

Curator Kermode announced yesterday that the attendance at the Provincial Museum has this season eclipsed all previous records. From six hundred to a thousand visitors daily register attendance, and on more than one occasion over twelve hundred have signed the visitors' book in a single day.

New York Launches Anti-Crime Crusade

Steps Taken Toward Forming Commission to Deal With Terrifying Conditions

NEW YORK, July 30.—First steps toward forming a national crime commission and launching a citizens' crusade against crime, characterized as "terrifying beyond all expression," were taken yesterday at a meeting called by Elbert H. Gary, head of the United States Steel Corporation. The meeting was attended by Governor Smith, representatives of the judiciary, the state senate, the police department and big business interests.

Governor Smith proposed a concrete plan which probably will mean the enactment of new crime laws in this state. It was urged that President Coolidge be acquainted with the details and purposes of the meeting and perhaps asked to help the crusade against crime by national action.

J. Telford, Kentucky.

Finance and Commerce

Opposing Forces Unsettle Prices

Many Issues Carried Lower, But Net Losses Relatively Small With Few Exceptions

NEW YORK, July 30.—Mixed price movements in today's stock market reflected the play of opposing speculative forces. Professional selling and profit-taking, apparently inspired by the belief that a further downward revision of prices was necessary in order to correct the weakened technical position resulting from the recent sustained advance, carried many issues below last night's closing quotations, but, with few exceptions, the net losses were relatively small.

Operators for the rise were again active in many parts of the list. Ward Baking "B" was pushed to a new top at 73 7-8 on a revival of merger rumors. Loew's was active around its recent record high in anticipation of the annual dividend being increased from $2 to $3. Picer Manufacturing was taken in large blocks and crossed 30 to a new maximum figure for the year.

Call money opened unchanged at 4 per cent, which rate has prevailed for over a week, but eased to 3 3-4 in the late afternoon. A slight stiffening was noted in the time money and commercial paper markets, 4 to 4 1-2 per cent being the ruling rate for the shorter maturities, and 4 to 4 1-4 for the longer loans.

Heaviness of sterling exchange, due to the uneasiness of the coal labor situation, and the partial recovery from recent weakness of the Scandinavian currency, were the features of the foreign exchange market.

French francs ruled unchanged around 4.75c. Danish kroner rallied about 15 points to 22.90c, and Norwegian kroner ruled about seven points higher around 18.45c.

Dullness was the chief characteristic of the bond market today, with trading interest focused on a few individual features. Under the influence of bank liquidation investment issues continued to sag in the field of speculative operations. Price movements were narrow and conflicting.

Wheat Continues on Downward Grade

In Spite of Favorable News Winnipeg Market Shows Decline and Closes at Loss

WINNIPEG, July 30. — Despite moderately bullish news from outside, the wheat market today continued on a gradual down scale, restricted foreign demand forcing July to 161 1-4 for a decline of 1 1-4. October dropped 1 1-8 at 137 1-2 and December was 1 1-2 lower at 134 1-4. May appeared on the board, reaching the high point of 140 5-8, but receding before the close at 139.

Fluctuations were extremely narrow, working over a range of about one cent. There was little buying with trade of a scalping nature and practically no short selling.

The sensational advance of 7 1-4 pence in Liverpool July brought about a little buying through commission houses, brokers and in Chicago, but the bulges proved difficult to hold. Fears were expressed that some damage may have been caused to crops in Western Canada as a result of cold weather, the mercury at several points on the prairie approaching the freezing point. Operators also were waiting reports on rust development.

The coarse grains markets were firm.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Wheat opened lower on weakness in Liverpool, and at the low the market was off around two cents from yesterday's finish. On the break good commission house buying came in, and a sharp rally resulted. Best prices were not maintained. Export demand only fair. Crop reports from Northwest were mixed. Milling demand for wheat continues fairly active. We believe purchases made on sharp setbacks will prove profitable.

Corn was easy most of the day, although the rally in wheat accounted for some strength after an early break. Rains reported in Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois caused some liquidation, and stop loss orders were uncovered on the way down. Believe the edge to be with the seller on the hard spots.

Winnipeg Grain Letter

(Supplied by R. P. Clark & Co., Ltd.)

WINNIPEG, July 30. — Wheat: The market after declining about 1⅛ cents during the first part of the session firmed up and advanced about ½ cent above the previous close, but once again the market demonstrated that the bulges are very difficult to hold, and a small quantity of wheat coming out during the final moments, the market quickly eased off and closed about 1¼ cents down for all futures. Trade volume was extremely light all day, but offerings were scarce, and the sensational advance of 7¼ pence in Liverpool July brought out a little buying through commission houses both here and at Chicago, and the mid-session advance was scored without opposition. There was very little short selling, operators preferring to wait a few days longer before putting any pressure on the market to see if there will be any rust development. There was little nervousness as regard frost, as temperatures at two or three points in Saskatchewan fell dangerously close to the front line last night, and cool temperatures are forecasted for Manitoba and Saskatchewan for today and on Friday. Alberta is becoming warmer.

Liverpool deferred futures closed 1¼ pence lower and seaboard advices stated that export sales were again very small, being estimated from 150,000 to 200,000 bushels, part Manitobas and Durums. Weather reports from the other side were more favorable today, as it was clearing in the United Kingdom and in France. We look for a steady market with an irregularly lower tendency, as previous levels will be hard to hold unless export demand broadens materially or something serious happens.

Coarse grains: Except buying of barley which gave this commodity a firm tone with higher prices, the coarse grains were very dull today with prices somewhat lower. The consumptive demand is very ordinary, and these markets will be largely influenced by the trend of wheat.

Flax: Displayed a firmed tone today with the market getting a little better support. Final figures from 1 cent to 3½ cents higher. Undertone firm, and this market should do a little better if only on the flax crop condition in Canada.—C. & M.

British Debenture Holders Advised by Sir Henry Thornton to Take Legal Action

MONTREAL, July 30.—In order that there may be no misunderstanding with respect to the attitude of the railroad administration in the matter of the Grand Trunk Pacific debenture stock interest, the following copy of a letter written by Sir Henry Thornton to Alfred Barnard, secretary of the Grand Trunk Pacific debenture holders' committee, in London, was given out for publication at Canadian National Railway headquarters here. The letter read:

"The legal department of the Canadian National Railway Company has advised me that the position taken by the company heretofore is sound. In order to further assure myself of this, however, the question was submitted Messrs. Brown, Montgomery & McMichaels, barristers of Montreal, for an opinion.

"I venture to suggest that you examine the opinion of Messrs. Brown, Montgomery & McMichaels, and if you are then still unconvinced of the legality of our position I will be glad to have the appropriate officers of the company discuss the matter in Canada with any representatives you may select, in the hope that we may convince you of the correctness of our attitude. In the event of further disagreement, I suggest that you bring an action in the courts to determine the points at issue.

"It seems to me that what I have proposed will definitely and finally settle the somewhat protracted controversy. After all, courts are provided for the purpose of settling contentions between parties and I see no reason why we should not avail ourselves of the judiciary in this instance."

Mail Airman Makes Record Coast Flight

Eddie Hubbard Makes San Francisco-Seattle Trip in Seven Hours, Forty Minutes of Flying

Tests New Boeing Air Mail Biplane

In the record time of seven hours and forty minutes, Eddie Hubbard, Victoria-Seattle aeroplane mail pilot, covered the distance between San Francisco and Seattle, while testing a new Boeing aeroplane, which will be operated between Seattle and Chicago and Monmouth, Illinois, it was learned yesterday.

Mr. Hubbard hopped-off from Seattle at 1 p.m. on July 14, and landing for the night at Eugene, Oregon, made for San Francisco next morning, covering the distance in eight hours. On the return trip he hopped-off from Concord, near San Francisco, and made the flight to Seattle in seven hours and forty minutes, a new record for the aerial time between those towns.

The plane is a large biplane, fitted with a 450-horsepower Liberty motor and is capable of lifting 1,000 pounds of mail at a speed of 130 miles an hour. On the first test flight the machine averaged over 120 miles, the distance between San Francisco and Seattle being 850 miles by air.

The Chicago test will be a heavy duty service one, in which the machine will be run for 100 hours fully loaded.

The time used is Pacific Standard for the 120th Meridian west. It is counted from 0 to 24 hours, from midnight to midnight. The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where blanks occur in the table, the tide rises or falls continuously during two successive tidal periods without turning.

The height is in feet and tenths of a foot, measured from the average level of lower low water.

Propellers to Be Altered on O.S.K. Liners

London Maru and Paris Maru Will Resume Victoria Call as Soon as Alterations Are Effected

Arizona Due August 10

The O.S.K. liners London Maru and Paris Maru on their last two voyages have passed up Victoria, and proceeded direct to Seattle to discharge cargo and passengers. This, however, it was announced yesterday by Rithet's Consolidated, local agents for the line, is only temporary.

Alterations will be made to the propeller on each of these liners so that they may come to Victoria. In the past these liners have experienced some difficulty in backing out of the harbor due to the fact that they are only single screw vessels. As soon as the alterations have been made, however, the liners will call here again, before proceeding to Seattle, Tacoma and Vancouver.

The London Maru at present is in Seattle discharging 2,800 tons of cargo, while the Africa Maru of the same line is loading lumber on Puget Sound for the outward trip.

The Arizona Maru has left Yokohama for Victoria and Seattle and is expected here August 10. No word has been received either as to the nature of her cargo, or the number of passengers.

Children Trade Old Relics for "Movie" Tickets

Youngsters of Guam Hunt for Antiques Which Will Provide Free Entry to Picture Shows

Museum Redeems Stones

HONOLULU, July 30.—An ancient sacred relic in exchange for a ticket to the movies is the latest tale to float up from the mysterious islands of the South Seas, where a group of scientists is attempting to solve the problem of the origin of the Polynesian race.

It is told in a letter from one of the workers attached to the Bishop Museum, Honolulu, and concerns Guam and the Chamorro children on the sun-baked shores of that island who will hunt assiduously for bits of weathered stone in order to enjoy viewing the cowboys, train wrecks, shooting scrapes and bathing girls that appear on the Guam screen as representing that far away and unknown country, the United States.

Search Is Hazardous

The search is "hazardous" for the children because of the tradition that the strangely-shaped stones which are in such great demand at the Agana "movie-house" belonged once to the "Taotao-Mona," or the "people of before time," who are feared so greatly that none of the adult residents dare touch the relics.

The stones are the implements and weapons left by the former inhabitants of the Marianas, who may have belonged to a race antedating the Polynesians, the scientists say.

Strange Compact Made

Many varieties of the objects are necessary for the study of the habits and customs of the race, and the Bishop Museum expedition has contracted with the Agana motion picture theatre in one of the strangest compacts ever signed.

Its terms provide for an exchange of the relics for free admission to the show, the museum to redeem the stones, most of which have come from "tabu" or forbidden spots. They will be studied carefully and perhaps in them will be found the clue that will lead to the origin of the Polynesian peoples.

Wireless Message Of Gratitude Is Sent to Victoria

VANCOUVER, July 30.—Wireless messages of gratitude from the members of Dean Laird's party of visiting teachers, who left Victoria by special C.P.R. steamer on Thursday afternoon, were flashed back from the Princess Victoria during the ship's voyage up the Gulf to Vancouver. On his arrival here tonight Dean Laird spoke in terms of highest appreciation of the generous hospitality extended to the Eastern Canadian teachers during their two-day visit in Victoria, and was particularly grateful for the beautiful tribute of flowers presented to each member of the party on behalf of Victoria citizens.

Rupert Weather Does Not Agree With Capetown

Officers and Men Suffering From Colds Due to Their Shift From Semi-Tropical Climate

Better Weather Forecast

PRINCE RUPERT, July 30.—Many officers and men of H.M.S. Capetown, which arrived here yesterday from Honolulu, are suffering from colds as a result of their shift from the semi-tropical climate of Hawaii to that of Northern British Columbia. No serious cases are reported, however, and with fine and warm weather forecast for this district for several days, the sailors are expected to have an enjoyable visit before they sail for Vancouver and Victoria next Wednesday.

The Capetown was scheduled to have arrived here on Tuesday, but was delayed by unfavorable weather encountered off the British Columbia coast. She was obliged to anchor for several hours last week on account of fog.

The cruiser is open to the public every afternoon.

Men Who Aided Movement to Receive Honor

Names of Those Who Took Leading Part in Palestine Mandate to Be Inscribed in Golden Book

Four Britishers Included

JERUSALEM, July 30.—The names of the ten men closely associated with the issuance of the Palestine mandate to Great Britain by the League of Nations, which provided that Great Britain as the mandatory power should develop the country as the Jewish National Homeland, are to be inscribed on the first page of the third volume of the Golden Book of the Jewish National Fund. This will be exhibited for the first time at the World Zionist Congress, opening in Vienna, August 18.

The men to be awarded this highest honor conferred in Zionist work are: Louis D. Brandeis, Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court and former honorary president of the Zionist organization of America; Earl Balfour, author of the Balfour Declaration which pledged Great Britain to do all in its power to facilitate the Jewish Homeland; Sir Herbert Samuel, who recently retired after serving five years as the first British High Commissioner of Palestine; Lloyd George, English Premier at the time of the issuance of the Balfour Declaration and the Palestine mandate.

President Honored

Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist organization and the Zionist leader considered most responsible for the present political and economic success of the movement; Nahum Sokolow, M. M. Ussishkin and the late Dr. Yehiel Tshlenow, World Zionist leaders; Baron Edmond de Rothschild, world-famous philanthropist, who worked for the upbuilding of Palestine; and the late Sir Mark Sykes, British diplomat, who was closely associated with the negotiations leading up to the promulgation of the Palestine mandate.

Archives Presented

Only the names of those who have rendered outstanding service in furthering the Jewish Homeland movement are inscribed in the Golden Book, which is preserved in the archives of the Jewish National Fund here. Among those thus honored are Woodrow Wilson, Warren G. Harding and Henry Cabot Lodge, and among prominent American Jews, Nathan Straus, Dr. Stephen S. Wise and Judge Julian W. Mack, former presidents of the Zionist organization of America, and Louis Lipsky, its present chairman.

Famous Old English College Starts Fifth Century This Month

Deans of Christ Church, Largest of Oxford's Notable Centres of Learning, Have Mostly Been of Great Ability—One Was Greatest Smoker of His Day

OXFORD, Eng., July 30.—Christ Church, the largest and most notable of Oxford Colleges, begins the fifth century of its existence this month. For reasons of convenience, the celebration already has been held, so the true birthday of this curious institution, which is both a college and a cathedral and yet is called a church, will pass quietly during the long vacation.

Modern investigation has revealed a remarkable continuity in the history of English ecclesiastical foundations. The Saxons built their churches on the ruins of the great Roman temples, and the Normans in their turn rebuilt the Saxon churches. This continuity is most remarkable in Oxford, where nearly every college has grown out of a medieval monastery. Christ Church stands on the site of a priory, a parish church and at least two older monastic colleges, its bells were removed from a neighboring abbey, and both the stones and the funds used in its construction were obtained from the dissolution of more than 40 monastic foundations.

Credit Due to Wolsey

In 1846 the tercentenary of this same college was celebrated, and in a sense properly, for 1546 was the date of its last foundation. The true credit belongs, however, to an earlier date and to Cardinal Wolsey, son of an Ipswich butcher, who began it as Cardinal College at a time when he was the favorite of King Henry VIII and stood second only to him in power and pomp and fortune. Wolsey was nothing if not a man of action. To make room for his college a quarter of the city of Oxford was pulled down. In the first year alone he spent a sum equivalent to three-quarters of a million dollars.

His plan was so vast that the great church of St. Frideswides which serves as the cathedral of the Oxford diocese was to be razed to make room for his college chapel. His kitchen is one of the largest in the country and the great dining hall is second only to the hall of Westminster in size and grandeur. When Wolsey fell from favor his college was taken over by the king, who refounded it under his own name, then suppressed it as a college to unite it with his new Oxford diocese.

"Smith of London" Built It

Beside Wolsey's great hall and kitchen, Christ Church boasts two of the finest English examples of the Gothic style of architecture, both built more than a century after Gothic became merely a historical term. One of these, the stairway to the hall, was designed in 1640 by a genius known only as "Smith of London." The other, Tom Tower, carrying the Great Tom bell which every night rings 101 peals to announce the closing of college gates, was designed by Christopher Wren, architect of St. Paul's, in one of the few happy moments when he really sensed the feeling of medieval builders.

Christ Church in its 400 years has contributed its share of illustrious names to history, U. S. as well as English. William Penn was a student of The House until he was sent down for his religion, as was George Grenville, whose stamp Act led to the Revolution and the loss of the American colonies. Sydney, knight and poet, Hakluyt, the geographer, Ben Jonson, John Locke, the philosopher, Bishop Stubbs, the historian and "Lewis Carroll," author of Alice in Wonderland, are but a few of the great Christ Church company.

The college has been fortunate in its rulers, nearly all its deans being men of great ability. One was the greatest smoker of his day, and when a bet was made that he would be smoking his pipe at ten in the morning it was only lost because he was cleaning his pipe at the moment. Another worthy dean, called "Presence-of-mind Smith" won this unusual designation by thumping with an oar a boating companion who had fallen overboard and was risking the dean's safety by his attempts to re-enter the boat.
